

Officials sound off on Lowell St. Construction

Pavement to be laid down by November 3rd

By STEPHEN BJORK

WILMINGTON - The ongoing Lowell Street construction project prompted a visit from Rep. James Miceli to the Board of Selectmen's Monday evening meeting. Miceli brought with him a guarantee from Mass Highway Engineering that the surface of the road will be paved for the winter shut-down by November 3rd.

It's going to be a 'Horrible' weekend

Don't miss the 39th Annual Horribles Parade this Sunday, October 29. Children wishing to participate in the parade should report to the Public Safety Building before the 4:30 p.m. start-time for a march up Church Street to Wilmington High School.

Goodies galore will be served to all costumed children in the school cafeteria following the march.

In the event of inclement weather, report directly to the cafeteria.

Pavement will be a welcomed relief for motorists in the area. Last weekend, a significant section of Lowell Street was left unpaved and was, following Friday's rain, fraught with large potholes. Traffic moved at speeds of 10 m.p.h. and slower throughout the weekend.

"(the contractor) called them ruts, but they were much bigger than that," Miceli said. "You could almost see cars disappearing into the holes."

The state-run roadway reconstruction project, which began in August of 2005, currently covers the area of Lowell Street between the Square One Mall and Michael's Place.

Selectman Michael McCoy, owner of Michael's Place, was also very disappointed with the condition of the area, particularly

"I don't even drive there, and I own a business there," McCoy said. "I know this would never happen, but I'd rather just shut down for a week and have them get the whole thing done."

According to Miceli, he has rarely if ever received as many calls regarding a single issue.

"That (area of construction) has been like an obstacle course," Miceli said.

Miceli informed the selectmen that he was given a guarantee that the paving would be done by November 3rd.

Town Manager Michael Caira stated that he too has received

Justin surprises doctors, and battles on

Fundraiser for youth with community ties

By ANDREA MACMULLIN

TEWKSBURY - Last January, Darlene Bissett was enjoying the winter weather while sledding with her six-year old son Justin at their home in Litchfield, NH. Two days later on January 19th, Darlene and her husband Jeff were handed the most devastating news a parent could ever be dealt: Justin suffered from an inoperable brain tumor. And there was little hope for their son's survival.

Weeks earlier on New Year's Day, Justin complained of a headache. After a visit to the doctor's office, Justin's physician prescribed some allergy medication. But the headaches continued, and soon Justin's hand began cupping, and he began to drag his right leg. His doctor ordered an immediate MRI at Dartmouth Hitchcock Hospital. Justin's physician told Darlene that he would not want to be hearing this if it were his child. "I just sat there. This is serious," she thought.

Later that night, they were given the devastating news of their son's condition. The rare brain stem tumor called diffuse pontine glioma was inoperable because, as doctors told the Bissetts, "it was like taking gum out of hair."

Family member Deanne DiBerto of Tewksbury was one of many waiting with Deanne and Jeff for the results that night at the hospital.

Selectmen endorse a "No" vote

...on Question 1 of the November election

By STEPHEN BJORK

WILMINGTON - The Board of Selectmen took a stand against the sale of wine in supermarkets and food stores during Monday night's meeting.

If passed, Question 1 on the November 7th statewide ballot, would allow local authorities to issue licenses, "allowing for the sale of wine at food stores."

It was a unanimous vote from the Board that followed a presentation from John Lucci, III regarding the issue. Lucci, who has interest in Lucci's Supermarket and Eastgate liquors, stated that his business interests should not disqualify him from rendering an opinion on the matter.

"If the guy who makes wooden bats for Little League sees that kids are getting hurt with aluminum bats, should he not say anything?" Lucci asked.

According to Lucci, passage of the ballot question would open up wine sales, not only to supermarkets, but also to convenience stores and to gas stations that sell food products.

Food stores are defined in the question as, "a grocery store, shop, supermarket, warehouse-type seller, club, outlet, or other seller, which sells retail food for consumption off the seller's premises...such food

A look back at Wilmington of yesteryear...

When Wilmington was crackers

By LARZ F. NEILSON

WILMINGTON - Can you imagine a cracker factory in the center of Wilmington. How about two cracker factories?

The story begins with Capt. Joseph Bond, who served in the Revolutionary War as a baker in General Washington's Continental Army.

Bond, born about 1760, was about 15 or 16 when the war began. He tried to enlist, and was rejected. According to a history by Rev. Daniel Noyes, he tried again, and by standing on tiptoe, he managed to slip into the army. When he got to camp, though, he was laughed at and put in the bakery. After the war, Capt. Bond, now a skilled baker, settled in Wilmington. On first arriving, he lived in the house at the corner of Wildwood Street and Middlesex Avenue. Many years later, the house became the Congregational parsonage.

Capt. Bond built a bakery, and produced a hard cracker, best described as being something like a Pilot cracker. It was a form of nutrition that people could keep for a long time.

The business grew, and Capt. Bond built a second bakery. It is not known which was built first, but one was about where the Baptist Church is today, and the other was opposite Glen Road, next to the former parsonage.

Meanwhile, Capt. Bond built a house on Middlesex Avenue, at the corner of what is now Adams Street, which is still standing. That house had ovens in which the Bond Crackers were probably baked.

Bond Crackers were sold throughout New England, via brightly colored wagons. The details of the colors are not known, other than that the wagons had bright red wheels.

The Bonds evolved into a large family. Joseph Bond, Jr. married Lucy Davis of Andover, and they had twin sons, Thomas Davis and Timothy Davis Bond. Among the confusing points in trying to trace the family is that maps of town from the mid 1800s show multiple properties owned by T.D. Bond. Joseph Jr. also had a daughter, Charlotte, born in 1809. She married Walter Blanchard. The Blanchards lived in the house on the right-hand corner of Glen Road, next to the Congregational Church.

Capt. Bond died in 1840 at the age of 79.

AMT RELIEF AND MORE IN THE NEW TAX LAW

The Alternative Minimum Tax (AMT) was originally designed to catch the super-rich who'd managed to put all their income into tax-free or tax-advantaged instruments; since then it has trapped millions of middle-income taxpayers with its complex provisions. In the new tax law, the AMT exemption has been raised, for 2006 only, to $62,550 for those filing jointly and $42,500 for singles. This will enable some 15 million taxpayers to escape the AMT net.

Another bonus: The top rate on capital gains and dividends will remain at 15 percent through 2010; it was supposed to rise to 20 percent in 2008. Also, low-income filers continue at 5 percent for dividends and long-term gains.

Another provision helps senior citizens who pay or have paid an entry fee to a continuing care facility that can be returned when they move or die. They no longer—at least through 2010—have to recognize phantom interest income under below-market loan rules.

How will the new tax law affect you? Are there changes you should make? Talk to the folks at:

Letters to the editor

A successful evening in Italy

To The Editor:

The Strings Attached Parent Support Group (fondly known as SAPS) hosted a benefit to raise funds for the Strings Attached students going to Italy next April. We would like to express our gratitude to Matt DePasquale of Rocco's Restaurant. The generosity of his time, resources, and wonderful food made our First Annual Italian Festival a rousing success. Thank you, Knights of Columbus, for donating the use of the hall.

The guests were treated to scrumptious Italian dishes prepared by Rocco's. Mr. Dillmore and Senior Strings members were hard at work in the kitchen and serving. While the guests were enjoying their meals, they were serenaded by Mr. Dillmore and these talented students. They strolled among the tables while playing, creating the ambiance of Italy.

The SAPS would also like to thank everyone who spent many hours of their time and effort organizing and running the event, those who donated items to the raffle table, and parents who baked delicious desserts. Hats off to Mr. Dillmore and the seniors who graciously volunteered to help out, and, of course, all who attended the Festival.

Sincerely,
Strings Attached Parental Support Group

Vote 'No' on Question 1

Dear Editor,

As a person with an interest in a local liquor and grocery store, I appeal to all voters to vote no on question one.

Eastgate Liquor Store employees are 100% TIP certified and no less than 18 years of age. TIP is a Federal training program educating employees to handle alcohol sales. The ABCC (Alcohol Beverage Control Commission) makes sure that controls are in place. They have the ability to search any bag being carried out of a liquor store under probable clause provisions. If a liquor store has violations, they can be shut down, putting a stop to the owner's livelihood. That's a pretty good incentive to play by the rules.

The convenience store employs people beginning at 15 years old. Passage of Question One would expect a 15 year old (with 18 year old supervisor approval) to have the knowledge and confidence to handle alcohol sales. The ABCC would have a difficult time policing convenience stores in the same way as liquor stores. They could shut down a portion of their business, but not the whole operation.

If this were to pass 2879 new licenses would be created. Of those licenses Wilmington would increase by 9, Reading 9, North Reading by 7, Woburn by 12, Tewksbury by 10, Andover 11. That's an increase of 58 licenses in Wilmington and the surrounding towns. Wilmington would have a total of 14 alcohol outlets. The reality, as verified by Secretary of State Galvin and ABCC Chairman Jenkins, is that convenience stores and gas stations will qualify, and get the majority, of these licenses. Additionally, the ABCC has been granted no increase in funding. They are already understaffed and are expected to handle an additional 2879 locations.

Massachusetts has the third lowest drunk driving fatality rate in the country. Research shows that increasing the availability of alcohol will lead to increases in underage drinking and drunk driving. The 34 states that sell wine in convenience stores have a 127% higher drunk driving rate than Massachusetts. We should be proud of our current rate and maintain the controls that have been so effective.

Everything's a Story

by Andrea MacMullin

"Well it must be cold out, Andrea has her stocking hat on."

Up until last weekend, I managed to nearly make it to the end of the soccer season before breaking out the cold weather gear. But last week, the hat, the gloves, the heavy coat, even a blanket escorted me to the chilly field.

Yes, some laugh, mock, even taunt me. But I was relatively warm amidst the crowd of next week's would-be flu victims. (And yes, my mother was right. I now believe you can get sick from being in the cold, not wearing a hat, and going out with wet hair, etc.) In my own defense, last week we had the first and the last soccer games of the day. In my estimation of meteorology, that makes it the two coldest times on the field that day.

Anyone who knows me, knows that I cannot stand to be cold. I secretly turned my heat on weeks ago (just in the morning to take the chill off) while others are holding out a few weeks more.

Years ago, I had a friend who didn't turn her heat on until December 1st. And even then it wasn't warm enough to my liking. Needless to say I only visited in the summer.

Maybe growing up in the harsh winters in Minnesota affected my future body temperature. There was usually a blizzard by Thanksgiving, and after a few weeks of thirty below zero temperatures, the ice was good and thick enough to put a community of fish houses on the lake. Ahh, good times.

Since now having lived nearly half my life in New England, I have heard the "Blizzard of '78" story a few times. Since I wasn't living here at the time, I can't attest to actually having lived through the treacherous ordeal. But, yes, I recall MINNESOTA getting snow too.

At night there was a scramble to get all of the extension cords in order. We had to run them from inside the house to the cars outside and plug them into the block heater on the engine. This was so the vehicles would start in the morning after the thermometer dipped to forty below - that's before the wind chill is factored in.

I actually remember begrudgingly having to wear a snowsuit to school - with a dress. First of all, it was not very comfortable, and secondly, not that I had to make a fashion statement in second grade, it just wasn't very fashion-forward. But, it was all in the name of warmth. And in the unforeseen event that the car stalled on the road or slid into a ditch on the icy road, I would not sustain frostbite should I have to walk to the nearest house.

Seriously. Should you need to leave your vehicle for help, there are some areas in the five or ten mile stretch where you would have to walk at least a mile before coming across a house. And hopefully they're home.

So before you scoff at my stocking cap or think I am weak for turning on the heat at the hint of the slightest chill in the air, remember, I have lived through cold winters. And I'm still just trying to thaw out.

Standing Eight Count

by Stephen Bjork

Religious cults tend to get a bad rap, when actually, they have a number of very strong selling points.

Generally speaking, cult members are required to cut all ties with previous friends and with family. That may initially sound a bit drastic, but think good and hard about your last fifteen Thanksgiving dinners. Let's face it; there is definitely something to be said for abandoning all ties to your relatives and living in a commune alongside hedonistic women with questionable personal hygiene habits.

Money is always an issue in everyday life; don't you sometimes get sick and tired of the hassle of having to decide how to spend all of your money? Why should you be bothered with such things? A good cult will remove all that unnecessary stress by taking all of your cash and income.

Cult members are truly a thrifty bunch, managing to save a ton of money on health insurance every year with the very logical strategy of relying solely on prayer to defend the individual against all illnesses. I would also recommend that they wash their hands once in a while, but prayer is good too.

Some cults are fortunate enough to have a bona fide faith healer as a leader. That's a good deal if you can find one of those. The Reverend Jim Jones, founder of the Peoples Temple, for instance, used to cure all sorts of deadly illnesses. During public healing sessions he would reach right through the skin of afflicted persons and pull cancers and other serious illnesses right out of their bodies.

Jones and I were very close back in those days, but we had a bit of a falling out when I innocently pointed out that all of the cancers he removed looked remarkably like raw chicken livers. I was expelled from his inner circle and reduced to performing menial tasks, such as going to the supermarket to buy raw chicken livers.

That guy had a great future ahead of him. Too bad he went and led that mass suicide of more than 900 people.

I will concede that as one of the major drawbacks of joining a cult; the whole mass suicide thing. Evidence suggests that suicide cults have existed for thousands of years, but Jones was a true pioneer and he truly re-defined the modern day version of it by convincing his followers to drink grape-flavored Kool-Aid laced with cyanide in 1978.

It is my understanding, by the way, that the fine folks at the Kool-Aid company never endorsed using their product in such a way. While nine hundred servings undoubtedly represented a substantial sale of their product, the Kool-Aid people would much prefer seeing a smaller volume of sales going to "repeat" customers.

The Heaven's Gate cult certainly took the mass suicide concept to another level in 1997 when 39 of its members determined that a ritualistic suicide was the best way to hitch a ride on the UFO that happened to be following the Hale-Bopp Comet. Heavens Gate members, an affluent group, were rather snobbish and would never have stooped to the Jonestown method of ladling deadly doses of Kool-Aid out of 50-gallon drums and into paper cups. No way. They wouldn't be caught dead doing anything so crass.

The Heavens Gate members ate single serving sizes of very tasty pudding mixed with lethal amounts of the sedative Phenobarbital and then chased it down with vodka. I'm not sure which brand of vodka was used on that fateful day, but one can bet that it was top shelf stuff - maybe French.

Most of the Heaven's Gate members had a crisp $5 bill and some quarters in their pockets. One can only surmise that the spaceship had a cover charge to get in and had a Laundromat or videogame arcade on board. As a very special bonus, they all got a brand new pair of Nike sneakers to make the trip in.

In retrospect, the whole Heavens Gate thing seems an awful lot like one of those vacation package deals gone wrong. You know those deals in which a set dollar figure covers the entire vacation - even the food and booze? What a bummer that would be - for your very last earthly thought to be, "Spaceship? I thought we were going to the Cayman Islands."

Luckily for me, I split with the Heavens Gate movement in late 1996. The basic tenet of their belief, of course, was that a spaceship would deliver the devout to heaven. Well sure, we all believe that, but it was my assertion that any spaceship worth boarding would be willing to schedule a stop on Earth in order to accommodate our entering in a more conventional fashion.

Alas, I was labeled a heretic and was ejected from the group. To add insult to injury, I did not get any sneakers at all - I would have settled for a pair of Converse Chuck Taylors.

The Reverend Sun Myung Moon's Unification Church practices what many divorced men might consider to actually be a far more subtle form of suicide, in the form of marriage.

The "Moonies" have been around for decades, believing wholeheartedly Moon's assertion that at the age of 15 he was visited by Jesus who implored him to complete the mission he had started. In 2003 Moon announced that representatives of the five major religions, along with a contingency of several dozen deceased United States presidents, communicated with him from the Spirit World for the purpose of declaring him as "the Savior and Messiah of humanity." How do you argue against a guy with that kind of backing?

In 1984, incidentally, the "Savior" did spend some time in a federal prison for tax evasion, proving for once and for all that the IRS is afraid of no one, not even divine deities.

With Moon being the world's savior and all, it is not at all surprising that the only way into heaven is with his explicit blessing - kind of like a Hall Pass to give to St. Peter, I guess.

Moon refuses, however, to provide that vaunted blessing onto unmarried people; not coincidentally, he holds the distinguished honor of being the only messiah of any recognized religious movement in history to appear in the Guinness Book of World Records. He holds the world's record for the largest mass wedding.

Moon's mass weddings started out modestly enough when he simultaneously married three couples in 1960. He began working his way up and in ten short years he was really rolling, marrying 777 couples in a January 1970 ceremony and another 777 couples in an October 1970 ceremony. Moon reached a pinnacle in February 2000 by marrying 20,000 couples. Who would have thought that anyone could have possibly gathered 40,000 of the stupidest people on Earth in one location like that? The logistics of it are mind boggling. Maybe he really is the savior. If they would let me get a Hare Krishna type haircut and would consider letting me be an "alternate" messiah, should Reverend Moon ever become unable to perform his duties, I would consider joining.

Let's Hear it!!

Your Two Cents...

Abacus Financial is not your "typical" mortgage company. They don't do alot of business with people who have pretty little refinances or purchases rolled up in a perfect A+ credit score. They deal with the dark side of the mortgage world. Bankruptcies and foreclosures. People who have worked themselves into financial ruin or have stripped all the equity out of their homes. Their customers (most, not all) have credit scores in the gutter, low income, NO income or are anxiously awaiting for an auctioneer to show up on their front lawns to take their home. My husband and I fell into 2 of those categories and it was Abacus that saved us and our kids from losing our home...on Christmas Eve no less!

Say what you want. Dana Kiklis is a SAINT. Earl's ex-wife is just ONE example of the messes Dana cleans up for his clients and personally, I don't care what he puts on that sign. He will always have our utmost respect.

We love you Dana...keep those signs commin'!!

Wilmington

Vulgar? I think not. Maybe blunt, to-the-point or direct is a better choice of words. Apparently you've never listened to the TV, gone to the movies or listened to any radio station lately. Stood in line recently waiting to pay for your groceries and glanced at the magazines? Guess not.

And who's to say Earl's ex was "cheating" on him, maybe she was cheating on her taxes, who knows. Seems your mind is more vulgar than Abacus' sign.

Welcome to the real world. If you're looking for a Puritanical society to live in maybe you could re-locate to Pennsylvania to live amongst the Amish.

Oh wait...it's not safe their either.

Zachary G. Metivier

Infant

WILMINGTON - Zachary G. Metivier, of Wilmington, MA and Londonderry, NH, died Tuesday, October 17, 2006, at Children's Hospital Boston at the age of 16 months. It was on that day that we lost a very strong and very special little boy. Zachary and his twin brother Dylan were born May 27, 2005, in Boston, MA, he was the beloved son of Krista (Pagliarulo) Metivier of Wilmington, MA and Mike Metivier of Londonderry, NH, he was an amazing boy from the start, he was born 10 weeks premature and weighing only 3lbs 4oz and was 15 inches long. Nobody thought he would survive, but at 6 days old he was the 2nd smallest baby to ever undergo the first stage of cardiac surgery and was the smallest to survive it. He had proven to his family that he was a real fighter. His connection to his twin brother was amazing from the start, he would calm when he was able to touch him, the love they showed one another was very special. Zach was very alert and watched everything that happened around him. One of his nurses at Children's Hospital referred to him as a "wise old owl". It was very evident that Zach won the hearts of all the doctors and nurses at Children's Hospital and if it had not been for the excellent medical and nursing care that Zach received from them, his family would not have been able to enjoy him for his 16 months. They became his

"extended" family and they will greatly miss this little "star". Besides his parents and twin brother, Zach was also the dear brother of Jason Metivier, precious grandson of Judy Pagliarulo, Anthony Pagliarulo, Patricia Redic, and the late George L. Metivier, great-grandson of Louise Pagliarulo, also survived by his step-grandparents, aunts, uncles, cousins, and friends.

His Funeral Mass was held on Saturday, October 21st, at St. Thomas Church, and was celebrated by Fr. Ronald Gomes and Deacon Cliff King. Interment took place in Wildwood Cemetery. Memorial donations in Zachary's name may be made to the Children's Hospital Boston Trust, Cardiology Fund #94201, 300 Longwood Ave., Boston, MA 02115. Arrangements were under the direction of the Nichols Funeral Home, Inc., Wilmington.

In a rehearsal scene from the Winchester Players' production of Arsenic and Old Lace, Wilmington's Barry Garden (1) in the role of Teddy Brewster has his bugle taken away by an annoyed Officer Brophy played by Bruce Gladstone of Woburn. The deranged Teddy believes he is Teddy Roosevelt and the bugle is necessary to summon his troops to charge up San Juan Hill. The show is a potent mixture of madcap comedy and smoldering menace, just right for the spooky autumn season. Scheduled for October 28, Nov. 3, 4, 10, and 11 at 8:00 p.m. and Oct. 29, Nov. 5 at 4:00 p.m., reservations may be made by calling 781-721-1814 or visit www.winchesterplayers.org. New Kiwanis Club members: Last summer Steve Anaian joined the Kiwanis Club of Wilmington. He probably looks familiar because, if you spent any time on the Wilmington Town common at the Fourth of July celebrations, you ran into Steve, working at the Kiwanis tent. His wife Betty (left) also spent volunteer time working there. Their daughter Beth, too, was a solid volunteer. Monday evening at Rocco's Restaurant, where the club meets, they all received their official membership pins. No longer volunteers, they are all club members. Photo by Stu Neilson

Don't miss the Wilmington Sons of Italy...

Christmas Craft Fair

WILMINGTON On December 2, 2006, the Wilmington Sons of Italy will hold its First Annual Christmas Craft Fair at the Villanova Hall on Middlesex Ave.

Over 25 crafters from around New England will be on hand to kick-off the holiday season in this inaugural event. Hand-made jewelry, crocheted afghans, pillows and tree skirts, porcelain dolls, wood, slate and tin furniture; as well as scarves, hats, mittens, and other Christmas gifts will highlight the show. Also on hand for your Christmas shopping pleasure will be vendors such as Arbonne Skin Products, Beijo Bags, Tastefully Simple Gourmet Foods, and more.

The Fair will be open from 10:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. and admission is free.

The Order Sons of Italy in America is a non-profit organization existing to promote Italian culture, national education, to combat discrimination for all regardless of race, color, or creed, to organize programs for patriotic and humanitarian purposes and to secure adequate laws for the benefit of its members.

Through local fundraising efforts, the Wilmington Sons of Italy is proud of the donations made to the Local Heroes Fund, Wilmington Memorial Library, Recreation Department, Wilmington Little League, Wilmington Youth Hockey, Wilmington High School Athletic Department, and to the Wilmington Police and Fire Department to list a few. The Wilmington Sons of Italy has also committed funds annually to the American Cancer Society, Cooley's Anemia Foundation, Alzheimer's Association, Make-A-Wish Foundation, American Heart Association, Special Olympics, and many more.

Proceeds from this year's First - with many more to come - Annual Christmas Craft Fair will be solely dedicated to the Wilmington Sons of Italy's Scholarship Program. Last year the Sons of Italy, through the hard work and generosity of its members, gave out $13,000 in scholarship money to deserving high school graduates on both the local and national levels. With fundraising efforts throughout the year, they hope to meet or even exceed that mark next year. For more information about the Sons of Italy and/or the First Annual Christmas Craft Fair, call 978-657-8572.

Tewksbury Senior Topics

Crafts Fair Nov 18; Regis Philbin and Susan Lucci tickets going fast; Subsidy Assistance Information Seminar Nov. 3

Those Seniors who have registered for Dr. Smith's podiatry clinic, are reminded that the clinic will be held this Saturday, October 28th at the Senior Center. It is suggested that one arrive ten minutes earlier than his/her appointment time.

Daylight savings time changes this Sunday, October 29th. Don't forget to turn your clocks back.

As one now knows, the Tewksbury Board of Health had to cancel its Flu Clinic of October 24th due to the fact that vaccine supplies had not been received by the Town. As soon as the vaccine supplies are received the Flu Clinic will be rescheduled. The new date will be noted on the Town cable message channel #10, the bulletin boards at the Town Hall, Housing Halls and Senior Center; and, in this column.

Last Thursday SHINE Counselor, Susan Cripps, met with Tewksbury Senior Citizens to discuss the Prescription Advantage Program. This was a most informative and a very important meeting.

However, there were few people present. If one is experiencing high prescription drug expenses, it is advised that you seek information on this program. If applying, it is important that one's application be in the Worcester office by November 15th. Therefore, one should fill out and send his/her application at least one week prior to the deadline.

As noted, this program should be seriously considered by persons whose income is: (SINGLE) less than $29,401-$49,000, or (MARRIED) less than $39,601-$66,000, or those people who, regardless of income, have annual drug costs exceeding $2,870.

This program supplements your supplemental coverage. Sound confusing? Well, coverage for Senior Citizens is just that. However, the only state with such a program is the state of Massachusetts. Most people over 65 have Medicare which covers, in part, one's doctor visits and hospital billing. Most also have a supplemental coverage like Blue Cross RX or a higher option in say a plan like Tufts First Seniority. These supplemental coverages cover ones prescription drugs...one's medicines. Well, Prescription Advantages is a supplement to one's drug c and in most instances is of no cost to the individual. This program will help many meet the outrageously high cost of one's medicine needs. For further information, one may contact an Elder Services SHINE counselor at 1-800-892-0890; or, call the Senior Center Director, Linda Brabant, at 978-640-4482.

On Wednesday, November 1st, the craft class will be traveling to Wrights Outlet and the Public House Restaurant for lunch. There are openings on this trip and others are welcome to join the crafts ladies on this trip. The trip cost is $25 and includes mini coach transportation, lunch and all gratuities. If interested, one must sign up by this Friday.

A "Subsidy Assistance Information Seminar" will be held at the Tewksbury Library Community Room beginning at 9:00 a.m. next Friday, November 3rd. Selectman Jerry Selissen, Assessor Jay Kelley, a representative from Community Teamwork, Inc. and others will be present to discuss: abatements; tax, water and sewer deferrals; fuel assistance; and, other assistance programs. The public is welcome and encouraged to attend.

At the time this article was submitted, there were several openings on the Mohegan Sunday trip of Thursday, November 9th. One may call the Senior Center to check on the status of this trip.

This past Tuesday, tickets were distributed for the Elks Thanksgiving Dinner for Tewksbury Senior Citizens. The dinner will be held on Thursday, November 9th. One may also call the Senior Center to see if tickets are still available. In the event there are no tickets left, a waiting list will be compiled. The Council on Aging will provide bus transportation for this event. Those who do not drive or have difficulty with night driving, should take advantage of this service. It should that the bus pick-ups for this event will start at 4:00 p.m. and that departure from the Elks will be after 9:30 p.m.

A note of thanks is extended to the Town Recreation Department for extending the availability of the Teen Center for the ticket distribution last week.

The Council on Aging has begun fuel assistance intakes at the Tewksbury Senior Citizens for Tewksbury Senior Citizens. Application assistance is available by appointment only. Fuel Assistance Income Guidelines for 2006-2007 are as follows (Household size - Maximum Gross Income): 1 - $19,600; 2 - $26,400; 3 - $33,200; 4 - $40,000; 5 - $47,800; and, 6 - $53,600.

To arrange an appointment one may contact Linda Brabant at (978) 640-4482. Younger Tewksbury residents or families with more than 6 members may contact the Billerica Veteran's Office at 978-671-0968 or CTI at 978-459-6161.

Tewksbury Senior Citizens interested in attending one of the two Tewksbury COA Christmas Dinners should note that tickets will be available on Monday, November 13th at the Livingston Street Teen Center from 8:00 to 10:00 a.m. and then at the Senior Center after 10:00 a.m. The dates of the dinners are Thursday, December 7th with transportation provided for this night and Friday, December 8th (no transportation). The cost of tickets will be noted next week when all dinner details are confirmed.

As is the case each year, it is asked that one not ask the staff to save a ticket but instead have a friend or a family member obtain one's ticket if unavailable to get your tickets on the 13th or after. In fairness to all, it is not the practice of the staff to save tickets for any event. One's cooperation with regard to this ticket policy is very much appreciated.

A Senior Center Annual Fall Craft Fair will be held on Saturday, November 18th at the Tewksbury Hospital Old Chapel. Table reservations ($35 per table space) are now being accepted. For more information, one may call the Senior Center at 978-640-4482.

There are only a few openings left for the Regis Philbin and Susan Lucci performance at the Lowell Auditorium on November 19th. If interested, it is suggested that one make his/her intentions known by making a deposit for this trip. The trip cost is $57 per person and includes admission and mini bus transportation.

A Carnation Belle is at the Senior Center each weekday MORNING to handle Red Hat event and trip tickets. Belles are asked to keep mornings in mind when coming to the Senior Center for Red Hat business.

The November Red Hat trip is scheduled for Wednesday, November 8th, when the ladies in purple and red will travel to the Bull Run in Shirley for lunch and entertainment by Andy Lorusso, the Singing Chef. The cost is $51 per Belle and includes mini bus transportation and all gratuities. Please note that payments for this trip are due by this Friday, October 27th.

The Carnation Belles two year calendar ($22) is available at the Senior Center weekdays from 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. The calendar makes a great birthday or holiday gift and also contributes to the Senior Center Expansion Project.

Happy Halloween and remember to drive carefully when those ghosts and goblins are out and about.

God Bless America.

Shawsheen Tech's Annual Golf Tournament raises more than $24,000

Scholarship endowment grows to $235,000

BILLERICA - A record number of golfers helped raise a record amount of money at the 13th annual Shawsheen Valley Golf Tournament held at the Indian Ridge Country Club in Andover. One hundred and forty-six golfers raised more than $24,000 for the Shawsheen Valley Technical High School Scholarship Endowment Fund.

The Scholarship Endowment fund has grown to $235,000 and has awarded scholarships and awards totaling $60,000 to help further the education of Shawsheen Tech students.

Shawsheen Tech Superintendent-Director

Charles Lyons, who founded the tournament, expressed gratitude to all those who have helped the event become such a successful fundraiser.

"Shawsheen Valley Technical High School is truly grateful to our sponsors and golfers," said Lyons. "Because of their support, not only will we be able to increase our annual scholarship awards to $12,000 this year, but this endowment has afforded many of our graduates the opportunity to fulfill their dreams."

Along with 72 tee/hole sponsors, Comcast Corporation provided lunch for the tournament while BlueCross/Blue Shield sponsored the driving range. In addition, Citizens Bank sponsored the winning teams, and LaBelle Chevrolet of Bridgewater sponsored a hole-in-one competition.

"Super Sponsors" included A&F Bus Co., Allan Construction, Colonial Supplemental Insurance, Constellation New Energy, Daniel Dennis & Co., Global Odor Control Technologies, KBA Architects, Lake HVAC, Mosse & Mosse Associates/Sun Life Financial, Shea, Dangora & Nelson and Tocco Electric.

The tournament also featured a raffle with numerous prizes prepared by the various vocational-technical programs at Shawsheen Tech and sister vocational/technical schools throughout the state, as well as prizes donated by several local businesses.

numerous calls regarding the issue.

"It is up to Mass Highway to sign off (on the conditions)," Caira said. "I was there on Friday and I did not feel that it was acceptable. I was there again (on Monday morning) and I let them know, in no uncertain terms, that it was not acceptable, and they have been responding."

The replacement of the Maple Meadow culvert, located between Michael's Place and the 99's Restaurant, has been pushed back due to the discovery of a trunk of cables belonging to Verizon. Verizon has been called, but has yet to respond. Caira spent time on the telephone chasing down a commitment on Monday afternoon, and Miceli promised also to call Verizon on behalf of the town.

The construction will continue into the spring of 2007 and is contractually scheduled for completion by March of 2007.

The scope of the project includes:

- The installation of traffic signals at the Route 129/Route 38 intersection.
- Roadway widening and reconstruction for the project area (north of Route 129/38 intersection to approximately 400 feet west of the Route 129/Woburn Street intersection).
- Replacement of the Maple Meadow Brook culvert under Route 129.
- Handicap accessible concrete sidewalks with granite curbing to be installed on both sides of Lowell Street, along with tree plantings and bicycle accommodation along the shoulders.
- In addition to the state supervised work, the Town has included the upgrading of the existing 10-inch water main to a 12-inch water main in the project area.

Justin battles on

"Our hearts sank, we instantly knew," said DiBerto when she saw Deanne come toward them.

Both Darlene and Jeff are Tewksbury natives, with grandparents Susan Bissett and Wayne and Sandie Turner still residing in the Tewksbury community. And Justin's dad Jeff still has close ties to the Tewksbury/Wilmington communities in his career as well. He works at Charles River Laboratories in Wilmington.

Deanne said that she will never forget when Darlene came to her after the diagnosis. Darlene asked Deanne, "How am I going to say goodbye to my son?" Deanne could not give her an answer.

The doctors told the Bissett's that six to twelve months was usually the longest someone could live with such a tumor. But Justin was declining quickly.

Within days, while still in the hospital, Justin's speech began to slow, and minutes later he was in agony. He was hemorrhaging.

"His tumor basically bled within itself," said Darlene.

Justin underwent emergency surgery to put in a stent.

"I didn't think he was going to make it," said Darlene. It was then that Darlene decided to bring Justin home, with the help of Hospice. "I didn't want him to die there," she said. So, Justin's family took him home.

But during the next two weeks, Justin began to respond. He would squeeze his parent's hand when they asked him a question.

"He shocked everybody," said Darlene, who had thought that her son had lost all brain activity.

Once he was stronger, Justin began chemotherapy and radiation treatments, increasing his prognosis to twelve to eighteen months. "We weren't satisfied," said Darlene.

The family researched treatments across the country, and Justin's father Jeff came across the Burzynski Clinic in Houston Texas. According to Darlene, Dr. Burzynski has successfully treated this type of tumor.

In June, Justin and his parents lived in Texas for a month, and began a Phase II clinical trial. Since the treatment is experimental, it is not covered by insurance. The Bissett's had to pay a deposit of $21,000, and for each month of treatment, another $10,000. Darlene said the treatment could continue for years.

But as a parent, there is no cost too big when it comes to your children. "You can't put a price tag on it," said Deanne.

The results of the treatment are nothing short of miraculous. According to Justin's second MRI after sixteen weeks into the treatment, his tumor is no longer considered a tumor, but a cyst.

"There's a fifty percent decrease in cancer activity," said Darlene.

With much hope, where there once was none, Justin continues the treatment. In the spirit of Justin's humorous personality, a fundraiser will be held on Thursday, November 2nd at the Tewksbury Country Club. "A Night of Laughter for Justin" will feature comedians, a D.J. and dancing. Tickets are $20.00 and can be purchased at the door, or by calling Deanne DiBerto at 978-851-3448, or email deedster15@msn.com.

Darlene is grateful for the continued support of all her family and friends during this difficult time.

"(The support has never dwindled)," she said. "It made it easier for us and our daughter."

Justin's ten-year old sister Casey has not only been a tremendous help to her brother and family, but a great support to her brother.

"They're best friends," said Darlene. But for a young girl, she has had to deal with a very difficult situation. "She's had to grow up too fast."

Darlene said that back in January she told herself that Justin would make it, and people will read about him someday. And Justin is proving his mother right. "He's a fighter, they've told us he should not be here today."

To remain updated on Justin's battle, or to make a contribution, feel free to visit his website, at www.justinfund.com.

store must carry fresh or processed meat, poultry, dairy products, eggs, fresh fruit and produce, baked goods and baking ingredients, canned goods and dessert items."

Lucci remarked that convenience stores, which often carry a small amount of each of the requisite items, would be eligible for a license simply by "having Slim Jims on the counter."

Lucci opined that convenience stores would not be as diligent against sales of alcohol to minors as liquor stores currently are.

"Under-age children are not even allowed in Eastgate, unless accompanied by an adult," Lucci said.

It was the lack of any significant disincentive against convenience stores selling alcohol to minors that made up Selectman Michael Newhouse' mind on the issue.

Selectman Suzanne Sullivan agreed with Newhouse, adding that convenience stores currently cater to teenagers and children.

Selectman Michael McCoy felt that allowing for wine sales would simply open the floodgates for an expansion down the road.

"This only allows for wine sales, but we all know that it won't stop there," McCoy said.

Best tasting fundraiser

since 1969. It was Golub who came up with the tasting event fundraising idea eight years ago.

Golub said, "In the beginning the event was much smaller, and it was held at the Knights of Columbus. Back then, we raised about $2,000 through the event."

This year's goal is $14,000. "It's a major undertaking," Golub said. "We have 65 raffles and 30 silent auction items. I'm very, very appreciative of the companies who have supported us."

This year's event will also recognize Gerry Duggan, of Butters Row, as Honorary Board Member. Duggan has served as a former President and Treasurer of the agency in addition to his ongoing contributions in the area of growth and development.

Golub described Duggan's commitment. "Gerry has been an ideal volunteer - enthusiastic, helpful and always doing what he promised!"

Tickets for the event can be purchased in advance for $20 at Focaccia Ristorante, Square One, 2 Lowell Street; Uptown Catering, 363 Middlesex Avenue; Wilmington T-Stop, 424 Main Street, and WFCS, Suite 11, 5 Middlesex Avenue.

Wilmington Family Counseling Services was founded thirty-nine years ago by Mr. Emil Berger, a Textron employee, who felt it was important for local residents to have access to mental health services. Prior to 1967, residents needed to go to Lowell for such services.

Berger found support for the idea from the Council of Churches and concerned members of the Wilmington community. Originally, the agency was funded by the Wilmington Community Fund and had a first year budget of $3,000.

In comparison, the non-profit agency now operates on a $750,000 annual budget and is funded by the Town of Wilmington's Board of Health. Last year the agency provided service to 1,230 families. In addition to individual and family counseling, services also include workshops dealing with areas such as Adult Children of Alcoholics, Relationships, Parenting, Blended Families, Stress Management, Early Sobriety, Empowerment for Women, Men's Issues and Anger Management.

Elaborating on the importance of such programs, Golub stated, "So many of the issues that people have affect others in the community. If you have a child who is bullying on the bus, it affects others. If you have an alcoholic driving drunk, it affects the community. Providing a safety net improves the welfare of the whole community."

The agency, which is located at 5 Middlesex Avenue, has a staff of sixteen professionals including a psychiatrist, psychologist, therapists, licensed social workers, and psychiatric nurses. Their purpose is to provide "quality mental health services at a reasonable cost to the clients, and at a time convenient to their work and school schedules."

The agency accepts individuals with or without health insurance. For those in the community without health insurance, the agency offers a sliding fee scale which ranges from $15 - $85 per visit. Non-residents of Wilmington are also eligible for service, although they are not eligible for the sliding fee scale.

All client information is kept in the strictest confidence, and no information is revealed to any person or agency without written permission. Though the agency is accountable to the Board of Directors and the Wilmington Board of Health, client names are never revealed to either group.

If you are interested in learning more about the fundraising event, or considering counseling services, please call (978) 658-9889.

When Wilmington was crackers

His family kept the business going and growing. In the 1850s, they employed about 50 men, including several Irishmen, who had come to this country because of the potato famine in their native land.

One of these was Daniel Kelley, who first lived in South Boston for a year before moving to Wilmington, shortly after 1850. It is said that when he was leaving Ireland, he put his family aboard the ship in Cork, then went ashore for "one more," before the ship set sail. It left without him, and he had to catch the next ship, and then catch up with his family in Boston.

Many of the Irish boarded with the Marshall family in the house opposite Wildwood Street on Middlesex Avenue. Mrs. Lucy Marshall ran the boarding house. In the mid-20th Century, it was the home and office of Dr. Ernest MacDougall.

The superintendent of the bakeries was William H. Poole, who lived in the house between the (then) Baptist Church (later the Town Hall) and the cracker factory.

On the night of Feb. 15, 1864, there was a magician's show in the vestry of the Congregational Church. A large audience was in the hall. Before long, though, the cry went out that the cracker factory was afire. The audience began to spill out of the church.

A 1933 history by the Rev.

Arthur Simmons quotes the magician thus: "A fire in a country town - suppose everyone will have to go to it!"

He never imagined that he would be hard put to save his belongings later in the evening.

The cracker factory fire spread to the steeple of the Congregational Church, less than a hundred yards away. It ignited a point high in the steeple, just under the weather vane.

Mr. Nichols, from North Reading, uncle of Edward Nichols, begged that someone give him an axe, that he might climb on the roof, cut the steeple, and save the church. The townspeople, though, deemed the mission too dangerous, and would not let him climb to the steeple. But then they watched the fire spread downward, eventually consuming the whole church.

The fire spread slowly, though, and they were able to save many historical relics from the church, including the silver Communion Service, the pulpit furniture, and the pews.

The town had no fire engine, and the bucket brigade was unable to reach the flames when the fire was in the steeple. Later, as the fire moved down and engulfed the entire building, the buckets were simply inadequate.

When the cracker factory took fire, William Poole, a coronet player, was playing in an orchestra in Reading. He had a fast horse, but had hired a team for the evening. Edward Nichols, then a young boy, took Poole's horse and rode to Reading and handed it over to its master. Poole sped to the fire, with Nichols following with the team. He then hitched up a bakery team of horses and drove to North Woburn to fetch a fire engine. He returned to Wilmington with the engine, but the efforts were to no avail.

By the end of the evening, the church was gone, and there was nothing the magician could do to bring it back.

The Congregational church was rebuilt, and the new church was dedicated on the second anniversary of the fire. That is the church that is there today.

The church which burned was the second church, and was 50 years old at the time of the fire. The church had been founded in 1733. By 1809, there was an article in town meeting to appoint a committee to seek land for a new meeting house. On May 4, 1812, the town meeting voted to build a new church. (Until 1834, the town owned and ran the church.)

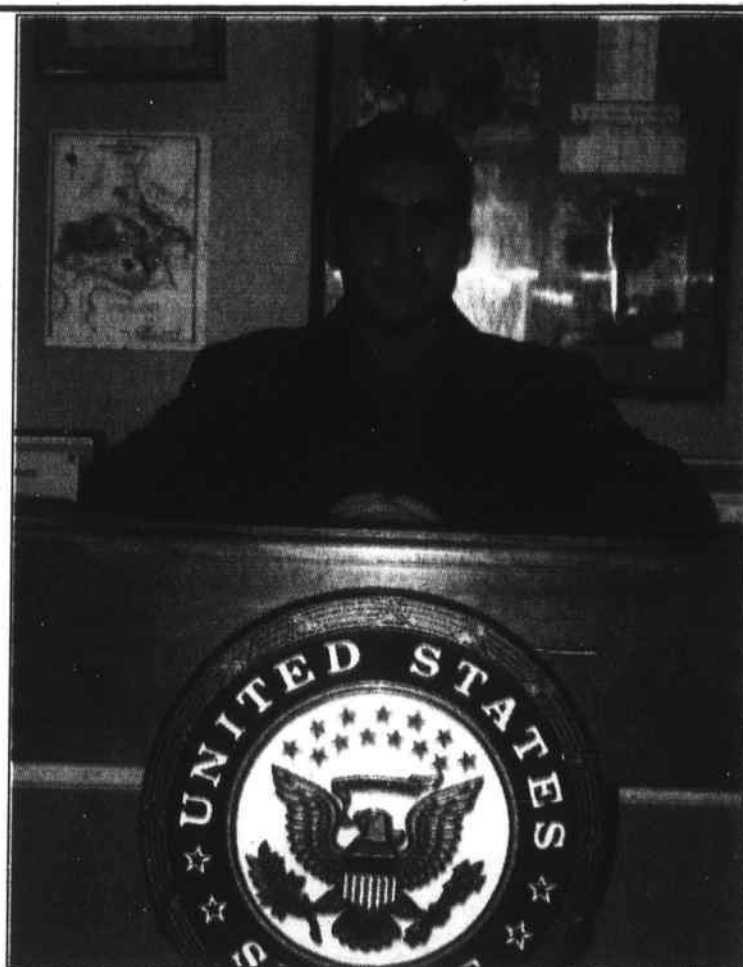

The first church stood closer to the old cemetery than the present structure. The second church was built beside it. In the town meeting of Nov. 13, 1813, it was voted to tear down the town pound and use the stones for the underpinnings of the new church. It was then voted to build a new pound, which still exists today on Glen Road.

After the second cracker factory burned, the Bond bakery business moved to Boston. Eventually it became the Continental Baking Co., the largest baking company in the United States. About 1930, Continental purchased the rights to Wonder Bread. The same company produces Hostess cup cakes and Twinkies. Ironically, the brand of Bond Bread was produced by another company.

The site of the cracker factory which stood on the site of the present Baptist Church was purchased by Daniel Kelley. His son James became town clerk and compiled a list of births, marriages and deaths prior to 1900 in Wilmington. The Kelley house was torn down a few years ago for the construction of the Abundant Life School.

Arthur Thomas Bond, born in 1852 to Thomas Davis Bond and Olive Thompson Bond, compiled a considerable amount of historical material about Wilmington. About 1905, he asked the town meeting to fund his publication of a town history, but the meeting refused, by a close vote. Bond then moved to Wakefield. He died about 1934.

About ten years ago, an antique dealer came across his collection and offered it to the town. The town purchased the material, and it is now in the Wilmington Memorial Library. The library is located between the two cracker factory sites.

Senator Kerry hosts Wilmington student as part of Disability Mentoring Day

BOSTON - Senator Kerry recently hosted 19-year-old Greg Getchell of Wilmington as part of Disability Mentoring Day. Getchell spent the day in Kerry's Boston office meeting with staff members, learning how the federal government operates and being given a personal tour of the State House.

Disability Mentoring Day allows employers the unique opportunity to mentor students with disabilities. The mentors open their doors to a talented population of people who are too often overlooked in the hiring process. At the same time, the mentees gain valuable work experience and the ability to form a relationship with a local business or organization.

"I am honored to have hosted Greg in my office. He is a hard-working, energetic young man, whose enthusiasm is contagious," said Senator Kerry. "Disability Mentoring Day is an excellent way for employers to see the potential and talent that people with disabilities can bring to their workplace. It is imperative that we work to ensure that people with disabilities continue to play a meaningful role in our communities and we must continue to strive to eliminate the barriers preventing people the disabled from entering and thriving in the workplace."

Getchell says he enjoyed the day in the office. "There is a lot of excitement and everyone works together on Senator Kerry's behalf," said Getchell.

Disability Mentoring Day began seven years ago with just a few dozen participants in the White House, but has now grown this year to over 12,000 participants from all across the country.

Massachusetts seniors encouraged to prepare now for 2007 Medicare Rx coverage

BOSTON - Not much time remains to prepare for Medicare Part D's 2007 prescription drug coverage, says the Medicare Rx Access Network of Massachusetts.

Open enrollment begins November 15 and runs for six weeks until December 31. Anyone wishing to change plans or sign up for the first time must do so during that time.

People already in a plan and satisfied with it don't need to do anything.

During October, plans are sending letters to current enrollees describing any changes to their drug coverage. The network recommends carefully reviewing the letter and re-evaluating the coverage to make sure it meets the beneficiary's prescription drug needs.

When evaluating a plan, the network recommends asking not only if medicines are covered but also if (1) they are brand-name or generic; (2) if brand-name, are they "preferred" drugs or "non-preferred" drugs; (3) require prior authorization; and, (4) have limitations on the quantity allowed per prescription. The network also recommends checking out the plan's monthly premium, whether it has a deductible, a coverage gap, a mail-order option, and if a local pharmacy is in the plan's network.

In 2007, fifteen stand-alone prescription drug plans that fill in the benefit's coverage gap will be available in Massachusetts. Next year, the gap kicks in when a patient's annual total drug costs reach $2,400.

"Remember, the vast majority of Medicare beneficiaries don't spend enough on prescription drugs to reach the gap," notes Dave Newman of the Medicare Rx Access Network of Massachusetts. "So know your annual drug costs when considering a plan."

A monthly drug-cost estimator has been added to www.Medicare.gov to help people compute their annual drug costs. Beneficiaries can also speak with counselors at 1-800-MEDICARE or 1-800-AGE-INFO.

A third of beneficiaries nationwide qualify for help with the gap from the Low-Income Subsidy, including 6,827 in Norfolk County. To apply for the subsidy, visit the local Social Security office or call 1-800-772-1213.

Girls Cross Country team finishes with seven wins

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

In 1994, Wilmington High School announced that it was leaving the Merrimack Valley Conference in favor of the Cape Ann League. Among the reasons for the switch, then principal Paul Fleming noted that all of the Wildcat athletic teams, and more importantly all of its student-athletes, would have a "legitimate chance to win every game". And having that chance would not only help out with wins and losses, but more importantly the minds and the attitudes of the students.

The following year, Wilmington started competition in the new league and didn't have that luck. Over the last 10 to 12 years, the girls cross country team here has not only struggled for victories, but really struggled to maintain a team. Getting five girls out for the team, and staying with it for the entire four months, was like trying to listen to Tim McCarver broadcast a three hour baseball game. It was an impossible task!

In 2003, the Wildcat girls team finished 1-8-1. In 2004, the team was 0-6 before having to forfeit the rest of its meets because the team had just four runners (so 0-10). Head coach Tom Bradley still brought the four girls to meets, who still enjoyed the 3.1 mile treks despite knowing the team had already lost. And last year battling with just four, five or six runners throughout the year, Wilmington finished 0-10, also having to forfeit several meets.

So over the course of the three previous seasons, the team has a combined record of 1-28-1. After beating Manchester-Essex, 15-50, and Ipswich, 19-44, on Tuesday, the 'Cats finished the regular season with an incredible 7-5 record, the most wins out of any girls cross country team in well over a decade.

"Never in my time has a team finished with seven wins," said Bradley. "And I know the year before I came they only had four girls so it's been a long time, a long time."

Certainly Bradley has arguably the program's best runner, sophomore Natalie Russo, who has already set the course record and has been clocked at a career best 19:42 time, the best out of any runner and they're all very good. It's better when you're in the game. Because when you're out of it, it's like 'OK we're going to lose again' but when we come to meets (this year) it's like 'OK we have a chance here guys'. It's good knowing that we're in there and we can actually do something."

year). We would have had eight (runners) but we wound up with 19 in total. Masco is going to have their 50 girls but 19 I would say is pretty much the number of kids the rest of the teams have in the league. I was telling the kids the other day that the biggest thing is a lot of them can run. It's not just 19

The Wilmington High School girls cross country team has won one combined meet in the previous three seasons before finishing out this season with an incredible 7-5 record.

Here's a glimpse of the scores of the meets from the past two seasons. The 2006 season is not listed in order of the scheduled meets only to show the differences of scores against each team.

over the last dozen years. Certainly, Russo has been a big part of it, but there's much more. Bradley had to get a waiver from the MIAA which allowed middle school runners to participate on the varsity program.

The addition of 11 middle school kids, along with five returners and two senior newcomers, who jumped ship from the soccer program, has not only made this season one to remember, but potentially many more to come.

"I think we're going to be very good (in the future)," said Russo. "I'm actually really excited because we have a team

And that the team has done.

This season, Wilmington knocked off Amesbury, North Andover, Georgetown, Lynnfield, North Reading, Manchester-Essex and Ipswich. The Wildcats defeated those first five teams (didn't face Georgetown or Manchester last year) by a combined 150 points. Last year, Wilmington was defeated by those five teams by a combined 102 points, thus that's a one year difference of 201 points.

"The middle school girls have made all the difference in the world and there's no question about that," said Bradley. "We would have had a team (this bodies."

And while cross country teams excel with one of two legitimate runners, it truly is a team sport. Cross country meets are scored upon place finishes, with the lowest team score as the winner. If Wilmington has the top place finisher, but then the opposing team has the next three, the Wildcats most likely lose the meet.

Cross country is all about a pack, a group of kids running together as close as possible, coming through the finish line

TURNAROUND PG SP 99W

The Wilmington High girls cross country team has done the unthinkable this season ... winning seven meets. A lot of the credit has to go to the 11 middle school kids who came out for the team and kept the program going, including Cali Pepper, on the left, and Lisa Hitchins, on the right, who are coming in to the finish line during a recent league meet.

Gordie Fitch
Youth Hockey Coach

How long have you been coaching Wilmington Youth Hockey?

Eight or nine years. I started coaching my son when he was young and coached him all the way up to Bantams, but now I coach my daughter in Squirts.

How long have you been associated with Wilmington Youth Hockey?

I have been with them from the beginning first as a player. We used to play over on Chestnut Street, and I believe we established the first Pee-Wee team in 1966 or 67. Of course Wilmington has grown quite a bit since then.

How do you compare coaching younger kids as opposed to older kids?

With the younger kids the beginning is kind of a mystery to them and then you start teaching them the game. I would rather be teaching at that level than when kids are older and have already established themselves and are set in their own ways.

What has the experience of coaching your children been like?

I try to treat them like any other kid, but it is a fantastic opportunity to be with them. You just can't let that go by if you have the opportunity.

Is there a difference between coaching girls (playing against boys) as opposed to coaching just boys?

Not really. We've got some fantastic female hockey players. They will go toe to toe with the boys. They are quick, strong players and can compete very well with the boys.

You were elected to the Wilmington High Hall of Fame as a multisport athlete back in 1994. Looking back, can you tell us what it was like to be elected for such an honor?

It was great just to be associated with such good people. And I remember when I was playing we just went out and did it. Nobody was playing for the notoriety. If that came it was great, but mostly it was just great to be from a small school like Wilmington and compete against schools like Chelmsford.

Having played and excelled in so many sports why was hockey your favorite?

A lot of it had to do with being with the town from the beginning and starting from scratch and then seeing the program grow. Also it's just a great game.

All right, a little off the subject, but how do you think the Boston Bruins will do this season?

Well, you always think they will be good, but you never really know. I mean, look how great Buffalo is doing and nobody expected that.

What would you do differently if you were coaching them?

It's hard to say because a lot of people have different styles of coaching. For me, I just love to teach the game of hockey, and I love teaching the kids game experience and game situations and seeing them learn.

Finally, as a hockey coach and a hockey fan, who is your all-time favorite Bruin?

To be honest, I never really thought about it much, but I guess it would have to be Bobby Orr. It would be crazy for it not to be him.

Down to the wire fight for Cape Ann League title

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

Normally when teams qualify for the state tournament, they use the last few games as a tune-up. The Wilmington High boys soccer team will still go to the garage for a tune-up, but certainly their engines will remain all revved up. With one final league game, the 'Cats are down to the wire in a quest for the school's first Cape Ann League championship in nearly ten years.

Tuesday was a very busy and exciting day in league play. Wilmington took on Triton, who can't afford to lose any remaining games or the Vikings will be ousted from the state tournament. The two teams ended in a 1-1 tie. Pentucket upset North Andover with a 1-0 victory, while, Masconomet defeated a very tough Ipswich team, 2-0.

Now all of that means this: Masconomet is in first place with an 8-1-2 league record and have two games left with North Andover and Newburyport. Wilmington is in second place with a 7-2-3 league record and have one game left with Georgetown. North Andover's chances are slim with the loss to Pentucket, but the Knights stand in at 7-3-2 in the league.

Wilmington would need to beat Georgetown and have Masconomet lose both of its games to clinch the league title outright. Wilmington could get a share of the title if they beat the Royals and Masconomet only gets one point in their last two games.

"We still have a shot at it," said coach Steve Scanlon. "I think with the tie (on Tuesday) it keeps us mathematically in it. I think a loss would have eliminated us from it. Masco has the game in hand so that hurts us a little bit but I think it's great that we're this late in the season and still in the hunt for the title. It's something good to focus on as you get ready for the tournament."

In Tuesday's game, Triton seemed to control the first 25 minutes or so, including taking a 1-0 lead before halftime scoring off a corner kick. Wilmington played much better in the second half, being more aggressive and winning a lot of the 50-50 balls which led to several scoring bids.

Immediately out of the gates in the second half, Mike Condell crossed a ball from the left side of the field to the middle. The Triton goalie came out and at the same time, Jason Pereira came streaking in-between two defenders, and nicely touched the ball inside the near post making it 1-1.

Wilmington had two big chances to take the lead later on in the second half as Matt Figuieredo had a penalty kick and his shot was saved as the rebound came out and Condell's shot went right into the keeper's body for two big saves.

"Triton played hard," said Scanlon. "They are a good defensive team and they kept going, knowing they can't lose a game from here on out. I thought we outplayed them in the second half. We competed hard for the free balls and we started to take the game away. But we had some good scoring chances but we just didn't finish."

On Friday, Wilmington officially qualified for the Division 2 North sectional tournament for the sixth time in the seven years that Scanlon has been head coach. The Wildcats scored three quick goals before taking a lapse and ended up coming away with a 4-0 win.

Condell and Pereira scored goals just 20 seconds apart in the third minute of the game. After keeper Vinny Papageorgiou cleared out a ball with a booming kick, Figuieredo got the ball and ended up setting up Condell with what proved to be the game winning tally.

Chris Azevedo picked up two assists, the first coming on Pereira's goal and the second coming on Condell's second goal of the game, which made it 3-0.

Chris Lavin scored the team's final goal, as he redirected a corner kick off the foot of teammate Brendan Doherty.

Papageorgiou and Craig Bush, who played the final 10 minutes, shared the shutout. And Pat Schultz, Eric Parsons and Dylan Reed played well defensively for Wilmington.

Two days before, the 'Cats ended in a 1-1 tie with Rockport. Andrew Goosens scored the lone goal for the 'Cats with an assist coming from Condell with 10 minutes to go in the game. Nick Farnsworth and JJ Polcari played well in front of Papageorgiou.

Wilmington finishes its regular season with three home games, on Thursday against Georgetown (3:30, North Intermediate), Saturday at 1:00 pm against Billerica (North Intermediate) and then Monday afternoon at 5:00 pm against Tewksbury, at the high school.

Wilmington High junior midfielder Matt Figuieredo dribbles the ball through midfield for the Wildcats boys soccer team during a recent Cape Ann League match played at home. The Wildcats need a win and some help to capture the school's first league title in ten years.

Hopefuls help 'Cats win fifth game

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

Heading into the season, no one really knew what to expect out of the Wilmington High School Football team. Gone were the likes of Joe Herra, Sean Murphy and Stephen Downs to name a few, and left were two very talented athletes named Rich Barry and Greg Stewart, and then a host of maybes, hopefuls and underclassmen.

On Friday night, the expected, especially Barry, kept up the task, but at the same time it was learned that this year's Wildcat football team has turned those hopefuls and maybes into a pretty good club. Barry had another spectacular night, and the Wildcats won their fifth game in seven tries, defeating Triton Regional, 26-6, in front of the home crowd on a windy, rainy cold night on a muddy and soaking wet Alumni Field.

Barry scored four touchdowns and rushed for 189 yards on the night as the Wildcats chalked up 305 total yards of offense. Barry has now scored the team's last 9 touchdowns - all coming in the last two games - and has rushed for 387 yards in the past two games, giving him 906 rushing yards on the season and 15 touchdowns.

"Richie and the offensive line were great tonight," said Wildcat coach Bob Almeida. "He got some great blocking and this has really become a team thing. These kids have become a team and it's been a lot of fun to watch."

"(Assistant) Coach (Mike) Barry came up with another great plan leading the offensive line. We run a lot to Kyle Borsetti's side and tonight we went the other side and Kirk Wayshville did a nice job as the other tight end."

Wilmington had a 12-0 half-time lead and really didn't put the Vikings (2-5) away until the fourth quarter. Wilmington came up short on a fourth down conversion from the Triton 10 yard on the opening drive but came back and put together a quick 3-play, 51 yard drive behind the 41 yard TD score from Barry, who received a great down field block by Ryan Jones.

Triton had gone three-and-out in its first two series before turning the ball over on its next two drives as Mike Larfarello pounced on a fumble and Mike Manganelli intercepted a pass at the 'Cats 43 yard line, one play before the halftime break.

"How about our defense," asked Almeida. "They played tremendous. That's a good football team over there. They are tough and they always play us tough."

While Barry's offensive numbers are very good, he's part of the defensive 11 for the 'Cats for continue to go unnoticed. The Wilmington defense has allowed just 72 regulation points in seven games, including giving up an average of 10.2 points per game and just 3 points in the first half of games. More over, opponents are averaging just 146 total yards per game, with 86 coming on the ground and 60 in the air.

Triton managed just 92 total yards of offense, with 50 coming on one drive. Besides the two turnovers in the first half, Josh Mayo added another interception, and Kyle Borsetti, Brendan DeMango and Jones all contributed with key tackles for losses.

Trailing 12-0, Triton made things interesting for a little while. After Byron Themelis intercepted a Steve Stewart pass at the Vikings 7 yard line and returned it to midfield, Triton got on the scoreboard when back-up quarterback Matt Emerzian connected with Jon Daley on a 13-play, 30-yard drive that lasted one play into the fourth quarter. The conversion kick failed and the 'Cats had a 12-6 lead.

kick and the ball was recovered by the 'Cats, who then got an additional five yards on a Vikings illegal formation penalty putting the ball on the Triton 46. Barry went 25 yards to his right and followed that with another run to his right, this one from 21 yards out - with a nice lead block from fullback Cory Groves - for the third touchdown of the game making it 20-6 after Barry rushed in the two-point conversion.

"The poor kid (Barry) has a million touchdowns in the last two games and here we are yelling at him tonight because we felt like he was running tentatively on one play," said Almeida. "We expect a lot out of him but he's a heck of a player."

Triton managed one first down on its ensuing series. Later on the Vikings went to punt but Sam Ferrara slipped for a seven yard loss. Three plays later, Stewart tossed his first varsity touchdown pass, a 37-yard screen play to Barry, who went in to the end zone with help from DeMango, who supplied a nice block.

"I thought we really played well the whole game," said Almeida. "I thought little (Steve) Stewart did a nice job hanging in there (at quarterback). He did a fantastic job on that screen pass to Richie."

Wilmington is now on the road for its next three games with a very difficult contest against Ipswich this Friday, before facing North Andover and Pentucket the following two games.

"We have a real tough stretch the rest of the way," said Almeida. "Ipswich is a great team. I've seen them play and they took on a real good Masco team. But you know what? We're going to line up, we're going to play and we're going to play hard. Real hard."

Volleyball team drops two more

Trying to put a finger on it

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

The nightmares must never stop for Mark Staffier.

It's bad enough that his team has really struggled in the win department this season with just one. But it's even worse when the talent is there for more than one win, and the talent has been displayed several times, but just not on a consistent level.

This past week is a terrific example of that. Against a pretty good Lynnfield team, Wilmington won the first two games and needed one win in the last three to pull out the win. Instead the Pioneers won the last three games to win the match, 3-2.

On Tuesday afternoon, Wilmington started off strong with an 11-2 lead against North Andover, who came into the game with a seven game losing streak. Instead of putting all hopes away of getting out of that funk, Wilmington didn't put the Scarlet Knights away, who instead rallied back from the 11-2 deficit and dominated the rest of the first game outscored the Wildcats 23-7 for the 25-18 win. North Andover won the second and third games, 25-17 and 25-20, to come away with the match victory.

Wilmington is now 1-15 on the season and have three matches left against Tewksbury, Masconomet and Reading.

"We were up 11-2 in the first game and then things just started to fall apart," said Staffier. "It was one of those things that I could just tell in warm-ups that we weren't ready to play. But we started out serving well and communicating but then all of that stopped."

With two players who are at least six feet tall to serve in the middle, and playing against some teams that Wilmington is clearly better than and having just one win to show for all of it, especially squandering many leads, is something that Staffier can't figure out.

"That makes two of us," he said. "I don't know what it is. It's been that way all season long and for the life of me I can't figure it out. I was asking the girls the same question after (Tuesday's loss). I know it can't be overconfidence because we have just one win. We're not cocky. I just think that once things get tough they pack it in. When things are going well, things are great but once things get tough, it just seems to fall apart each time."

It's been a pretty frustrating and disappointing season for Staffier and the Wildcats, who are coming off four straight years of not only competing in the state tournament, but winning a handful of Division 3 North sectional games. But that streak came to a halt this season.

With three games left on the schedule, the coach is hoping for something to go right.

"I would just like to see them play consistently for three games, five games or whatever," said Staffier. "I would love to see the team pull out three victories out together and finish the season on a good note. I know they can do it. It's not like the talent isn't there because it is. I think it's just a mental part of the game, so hopefully we can pull it all together."

WHS Girls Soccer on verge of qualifying

Making one valid point

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

It's surely going to get interesting.

After picking up three victories this week to improve to 8-7-1 overall, the Wilmington High girls soccer team needs just one more point to qualify for the Division 2 North sectional tournament for the fifth year in a row. However, the 'Cats two remaining games are against opponents, who also need just one more point to qualify themselves.

On Thursday, Wilmington travels to Georgetown and on Monday, the Wildcats host Tewksbury at 7:00 pm. The Redmen were defeated on Tuesday and have two shots to get one point with games against Dracut and Wilmington.

Wildcat head coach Sue Hendee joked that she wishes Georgetown had won several days beforehand so it wouldn't come down to this, but realizes that if her team plays like it did on Tuesday night at home, then things will work out for the 'Cats.

"We played a very controlled game and we did what we had to do," said Hendee. "It was a good team effort. Everybody played well and no one had a bad game. It was good."

Sophomore midfielder Lizz Chin scored her first varsity goal, coming just a minute into the game assisted by senior forward Brianne Bozzella. Bpz then made it 2-0 early in the second half as Chin sent a pass towards the net which got deflected and eventually landed on Bozzella's foot and she nailed it home.

Bozzella now has 13 goals and 5 assists this season, and has combined for 25 goals and 12 assists for 37 points in 35 games

Sports memories equals profit

Welcome sports fans, to the wild and sometimes wacky world of the sports memorabilia marketplace. Or should I say welcome to a first-hand account of my introduction to the autograph packaging of a famous local athlete.

I've often snickered at the fantasy football-on line sports geeks, and sometimes the memorabilia seekers can veer off into the same laughable direction. I try to fathom why someone would stand in line for hours seeking a professional athlete's John Hancock. The answer for many of these people is simple - this is a money making venture - it has been this way for many, many years.

When I was a kid I collected the old Topps Baseball Cards, wrecked or lost all of them, and as a 10-year-old I never thought that some day I could package them and sell the lot for a nice profit. These days Pete Rose signs everything but a broken bat, goes on some home shopping network, and I change the channel as soon as I can find the remote. Autograph events/items are found everywhere on the internet, with signing 'events' splashed all over the sports sections. Holiday Inns and convention centers are packed on most weekends when current and former athletes sell their names for a profit.

The retired former athlete or even a journeyman player can make more by signing his name than he did when he was on the playing field. The late Mickey Mantle was probably the first famous former athlete to turn the autograph into a cottage industry. Mantle lugged around briefcases full of signed memories, and when he died dollar signs began doubling.

The game is not about meeting and greeting an athlete that you idolize anymore. If it is, you must dodge the profit makers to get to the athlete that you always wanted to meet. Like a lot about what goes on in professional sports today, the hunt sours the experience or enjoyment of the game for me. It does help to try and understand the pursuit however. Some of it is hard to understand, unless you inadvertently become one of the collectable hunters. It also helps to really have a good laugh while the hunt goes on all around you.

Recently, my girlfriend and I attended a charity event for a very worthy cause. The night included great music, inventive comedy, raffles and a silent auction. Everything that night, including the price of our tickets, was going to charity. I was content with my raffle ticket purchase, and after enjoying the music we sat and waited for the silent auction to begin.

A signed Celtics' basketball, some skis, various restaurant packages, and last but not least, an autographed Doug Flutie game jersey. With two bucks in my pocket, I expected to once again be the casual observer. Think again. The auctioneer, very professional sounding and reeling with the crowd's excitement, began the bidding earnestly. I forgot what the first bid was, but not long after the initial foray, Linda decided that she, or should I say we, would enter the memorabilia marketplace.

A little excited squeak and her right hand was in the air as she waved the auction card for all to see. The bid was $150 and she was in the hunt. What? Huh? I wasn't quick enough. I shifted in my seat and gave her a quick look and a muffled chortle. What? Huh? "How much is that worth?" she asked. Not being a memorabilia mentor by trade, I mumbled "maybe $400, I guess. Do I really know what this stuff is worth? Nope. Just a non-educated guess. I remembered again that I had two bucks in my pocket."

Another bid at $175 was in. We're safe, I thought. Little did I know that when this memorabilia hunt heats up, even a non-sports fan like Linda can get very excited. All bets are off. It's open season on sports signage.

"Two-hundred dollars," Linda agreed with Mr. Auctioneer. Holy smokes. Now was one of those rare occasions when I was truly speechless. Then I thought, isn't this nice, my honey is getting me a memorabilia Christmas present. My first signed anything by any athlete. No one raised her bid, and Linda was the proud owner of an autographed Doug Flutie San Diego Chargers (number 7) game jersey. Not a Boston College jersey, or New Jersey General, Chicago Bear, Buffalo Bill, or New England Patriot jersey. Not even Flutie's original number 22 or even 2, but a number 7 on the back. I didn't even have time to give Linda a Flutie career rundown.

"This will be a nice investment for us," hoped my love. I agreed. That is, after recovering from the fact that this 'potential' purchase was not a gift to me, but a memorabilia investment. Linda, a true non-sports fan, understood that much. These people that play these games that she doesn't watch, if they sign stuff that they wear, and the buyer holds on to it for long enough, some money can be made. Now I've got it. I was an official memorabilia geek. We had a signature that was worth something. Or did we?

While I wasn't the owner, I volunteered to be the shirt's 'agent.' I called the charitable organization and inquired about the shirt's 'certificate of authenticity.' You see, many years ago a lot of bogus (that's fake for you neophytes) stuff was floating around. People were buying signage by some guy who had practiced Mantle or Ted Williams' signatures in some backroom somewhere. Thus, the advent of the dated, stamped certificate letting the buyer know, that indeed, said athlete was solely responsible for the autograph.

I was already to begin the process of preserving the jersey, marketing it for future profit, and helping Linda with her first memorabilia purchase. Just dipping our toes in the 'official' memento waters.

After two phone calls to the seller, I was told that the third party donor of the shirt had no certificate. Thankfully, Linda chose to not give up the dough on that night, waiting to finalize the transaction. No certificate, I told them - no check, no money, no memorabilia. Didn't they know this was what the new memorabilia geek needed? I wanted proof. I wanted profit for us. Oh boy, I thought, how the high and mighty have fallen.

I don't bet on sports. I don't buy autographs. I don't pretend to know something about anything that I know absolutely nothing about. But, I got sucked into the hunt. After all, how much San Diego Charger stuff with Flutie's name on it is out there? Maybe he'll decide to stop signing stuff and the jersey will be worth more someday.

Now we can put it on E-Bay. Now we can use it to finance a vacation. Now I can frame it and hang it over my couch and tell some unimpressed friend "look what I bought!" A sports fan with legitimate proof of his undying love for a local football icon.

Oh, for crying out loud. Admit it. It was exciting. It was fun. I was a memorabilia geek for a couple of days. Who knows, if the next seller can produce a 'certificate of authenticity,' I might even close the deal.

Any Hank Finkel stuff out there? If you are hunting down Finkel signed stuff, you qualify. You are a memorabilia geek. And so am I.

Wilmington High boys basketball coach Jim McCune will be honored next month as the Division 3 Coach of the Year by the Massachusetts Basketball Coaches Association. (file photo)

McCune to be honored next month as Coach of the Year

Wilmington High School boys basketball coach Jim McCune is among several local coaches who will be honored by the Massachusetts Basketball Coaches Association at this year's MBCA Hall of Fame Banquet on November 19th.

The Coach of the Year awards for the 2005-'06 season will go to McCune, as well as Concord-Carlisle boys coach Tom Sullivan and Lowell High girls' coach Mike Crowley.

McCune led the Wildcats to their fifth straight Cape Ann League title, and a trip to the Division 3 North quarterfinal round. A two-time Town Crier Coach of the Year, McCune was also named the Cape Ann League Coach of the Year this past season.

McCune currently has a career record of 295-176 between coaching at St. Clement's High School in Somerville and the past 16 years at WHS. Behind the Wildcat bench, he has 212 career victories, six league titles, while the team has competed in the state tournament 13 of the last 14 years including 12 post season wins in the past five years.

McCune became just the second WHS coach in the history of athletics to win five league titles in a row. Jan Cassidy-Wood accomplished the feat as the head field hockey coach from 1973 to 1977.

Tossing Bledsoe, Miami players aside for a Tiger named Rogers

First of all, you, the faithful and respected reader, should know something. I felt obliged to write something this week, regardless of my broken wrist and the endless worlds of pain I am in. But I owe it to you, so here you go.

How about them Cowboys? You couldn't help but laugh after watching a breathless sideline report stating Tony Romo was in for Drew Bledsoe after halftime of Monday Night's game between Dallas and the New York Giants. Romo's first pass was tipped straight up, and then intercepted. Thankfully for Romo, he only threw two more picks that night, legitimizing him as the permanent replacement for Bledsoe.

Speaking of football, how about them brawls? Miami and Florida International sure put on a show. Helmets being thrown, people on the ground being stomped, fists flying. And to think it came after an extra point. But here's the interesting part. Florida International suspended 16 players indefinitely and actually kicked two players off of the team. Miami, having been the gold standard of discipline for many years, suspended 12 players for one game. And it just so happened this game was against Duke, the worst D-I football program on the face of the Earth. They're an average Pop Warner team.

But Miami sure made a statement. The University President talked about how they weren't going to throw their student-athletes under the bus for their actions. Newsflash: you're not throwing them under the bus if they did it and its been televised 8 billion times. The President wasn't in the melee throwing elbows. Penalize them like the children they are.

Speaking of children, have you seen Mike Tyson lately? Tyson is traveling throughout the country selling tickets to makeshift fights. This traveling circus is a clever disguise to pay for the massive debts Tyson is in. Who would have thought that buying a tiger isn't a smart financial decision? According to ESPN.com, "The estimated 5,000 fans on hand conveyed dismay when Sanders, a 292-pound behemoth, strolled to the ring wearing a T-shirt and headgear." Not to mention that each one of those poor 5,000 people had to shell out 30 bucks to see this.

It's a good time to be a Wilmington High School fan. Every team is doing very well. The boys soccer team is fighting to win a Cape Ann League championship, and the football team is playing like an inspired club right now after the thrashing of Hamilton-Wenham. The girls' soccer team has also been playing exceptionally well, and the field hockey team is showing signs of a brighter future.

Turning to basketball, Seattle lost both of their teams, the Sonics and the Storm, to an Oklahoma City group. So not only can you be Sleepless in Seattle, you can also be forced to watch the Mariners.

The Women's Basketball Coaches Association will honor late Army coach Maggie Dixon by naming an award after her that will be given annually to the rookie coach of the year. Dixon died suddenly in April, shocking the basketball community. This is a very classy gesture and should be applauded.

Baseball, anyone? It seems like the only thing anyone can talk about nowadays is Tigers' pitcher Kenny Rogers and the dirt on his hand in game two. Most people are upset that nothing was done. Apparently something was done because the dirt was washed off after the first inning and that was that. Rogers did go on to pitch a gem against the Cardinals. Too bad the Tigers weren't playing the Marlins in the Series because Rogers is certainly up to something fishy.

The sports world never ceases to amaze me. You can't help but wonder how it all keeps happening. Of course, you wouldn't be wondering if I didn't present this information to you. A dedicated columnist with a broken wrist. Only in America.

Letter to the Sports Editor

A Thank You to youth Wilmington programs

Dear Jamie:
As the fall soccer season comes to an end and the winter basketball season gets started, I would like to applaud the Wilmington Youth Soccer Association and Wilmington Recreation Department for their efforts in promoting great youth sports programs in our town.

My family has been actively involved in both programs' activities over the past few years and I have been very impressed with their efforts. Each organization does a great job recruiting volunteers, emphasizing good sportsmanship and team play, and promoting good values for our kids.

I would highly recommend registering your kid(s) for one of their programs and/or volunteering your time to help out one or both of these organizations as well.

Sincerely,
Chuck Otis

shoot within steps of one another.

"I've said the girls in the past that if you can run in 24 minutes or better, there's a good chance you'll be in the scoring," said Bradley. "And I never had a team that had three girls who could run under 25 (minutes). This year we have 12. We have three girls under 22 (minutes), which includes Natalie under 21, and then Kerry (Spry), Nikki (Sirignano) and Lisa (Hitchins). We have three more under 23 and five more under 24."

"We had a pretty good pecking order with Natalie first and usually Kerry and Nikki second and third, but after you got through our top three, the rest depended on who felt good that day. And I think it's ten of the girls have finished in seventh place or better (during a meet this season)."

Interestingly, in the past ten years that Bradley has been the head coach, six of the program's best finishes in a race during that span come from members on this team, with Russo the oldest of the group as a sophomore. She has the program's best time, while, fellow sophomore Ali Lyman also cracks the top ten list. Eighth grader Kerry Spry ranks third, followed by other middle schoolers including Lisa, Hitchins, Lori Fletcher and Nikki Sirignano.

And while it's very important that a cross country team run as a pack as much as possible, the difference of a bad team to a good team or a good team to a great team is off-season and preseason workouts.

"We did a lot more running in groups of their abilities (during the preseason)," said Bradley. "And I felt much more comfortable doing that. We ran the course in half mile increments and just told each group what time we wanted them to run. We took 90 seconds in-between every half mile segments and go do it. Instead of trying to get everybody together doing the same thing. I think I would do even more of that next year."

That paid off immediately. In the team's first meet of the season, the 'Cats defeated Amesbury, 18-41, which comes a year after losing 19-39 to the Indians.

"The attitude has been good," said Bradley. "I do think that once we started beating teams we never beat before and that starts with North Andover. North Andover didn't run their best girl that day. But even if (Kristen Kasper) ran that day (and won) we still would have won by a point as it still would have been close but she's out for the season."

"We have no illusions. We know we're not going to beat Masco and Pentucket turned out to be much worse than we thought and Hamilton-Wenham, no one is going to touch."

Bradley said that the attitude has been terrific all season long. But with one combined win in the past three seasons, even he would admit that he had no inkling of what to expect out of wins and losses, attitudes and work ethic heading into this season.

"Everybody has been really good," said Russo. "We've had the middle school girls come up and they've been great. We have been so surprised that we actually had a team this year. Last year, with the entire high school (to choose from) we didn't even have enough girls to field a team. But this year with the high school we actually had enough girls to field a team."

Besides the additions of the middle school kids, certainly Bradley and Russo reiterated that the additions of two seniors, Kim Silvia and Courtney Parsons, who came over from the soccer programs, have been so instrumental with terrific leadership and having the right attitude on and off the course.

"You would think that some people wouldn't like to have newcomers, but (Kim and Courtney) came in and there was immediate respect," said Russo. "They are upperclassmen, senior captains and right away everyone listened to their authority."

Added Bradley, "Courtney has been fabulous for us. She has really stepped it up. She's not the fastest kid and she'll finish usually sixth or seventh for us, but she hasn't missed a practice or a meet and she's shown a lot of leadership in my mind. It's nice because both Courtney and Kim are the captains for winter and spring track so I get to work with them throughout the entire year. They have both been very good additions."

Both Silvia and Parsons have a history of performing as members of the track teams in various events. Silvia said she's thrilled she made the switch from the soccer cleats to the running shoes.

"I'm glad that I made the switch," she said. "I used to play soccer and this team is a lot more fun and everyone on the team is so nice. Everyone is so encouraging and that's really great to see. Everyone is there cheering for the last person to come in no matter who it is and that's so important."

She later joked that she's among those last few finishers each meet.

"I'm usually in the back," she said. "But I'm a sprinter and this is my first year running cross country. And just seeing (the middle school kids) contribute to the team and score points is just amazing. I don't know how they do it."

After this season is completed and Silvia and Parsons are gone. But the other 17 members of the team can stay together including next year's captains, Russo, Lyman and Ivy Co., as well as senior to be Megan Keane, junior to be Lauren Waring, sophomore to be Meghan Ryan, and the other intermediate school girls including Kristyn Callahan, Beth Doherty, Michelle Filippi, Amy Fisher, Paige Miller, Cali Pfeffer and Lauren Azevedo.

But the large question looms of whether or not this program will continue to pile up wins, have the numbers to support a team and leaving all sorts of questions of whether or not it's worth funding this program if it has to consistently forfeit meet after meet.

Amy Fisher, one of the middle school members, has done very well as a member of the Wilmington High girls cross country team.

"We'll find out next season because if the (middle school kids) go out and play soccer, we haven't gained anything," said Bradley. "Other than that we have one more year with the waiver, as we have three seventh graders. Nikki and Lori Fletcher are both fabulous but they both play soccer. Kerry also plays soccer so there's no guarantee that they will run.

"All we can do is show them how good they are. You would think that if they know they are very good in cross country and enjoy it, than maybe they aren't as great in soccer and they are on the team and maybe play JV for a couple of seasons, that they would stick to (cross country)."

Cross Country teams close out regular seasons

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

The Wilmington High School boys and girls cross country teams finished up the regular season with a busy slate of meets. The boys team defeated North Reading 22-38 last Wednesday and then lost to both Ipswich, 28-29, and Manchester-Essex, 19-36, on Tuesday, closing out the team's record at 4-8.

Against North Reading, Tom Valente won the race coming in at 17:52. He was followed by Andrew Marra, who was third at 19:11, Chris Lyon who was fifth at 19:25 and then the trio of Jimmy DiNuccio (20:01), Jon Lippiello (20:21) and Matt Bibeau (20:23), who ultimately won the team the race.

On Tuesday the same kids finished in order for the Wildcats, who were just edged out by Ipswich. Valente came across at 18:03, followed by Marra (19:18), Lyons (19:36), DiNuccio (19:42) and Lippiello (20:10).

Turning to the girls, they defeated North Reading, 19-40, Manchester-Essex, 15-50, and Ipswich, 19-44, closing out their regular season with a terrific mark of 7-5. Natalie Russo won the North Reading meet coming in at 20:41, followed by Nikki Sirignano (21:44) and Lisa Hitchins (21:51), who both finished with personal records. Ali Lyman (22:24), Lori Fletcher (22:36), Lauren Azevedo and Courtney Parsons rounded out the Wildcat finishers.

Then on Tuesday, Russo won the meet again coming in at 20:26, followed by Kerry Spry, who did not run against North Reading, and she was second at 22:21. Fletcher was right behind in third place at 22:32, followed by Sirignano at 22:40 and Lisa Hitchins at 22:47. Ali Lyman and Lauren Azevedo were sixth and seventh, respectively.

Wilmington will now compete in the Cape Ann League Meet this Saturday morning at the Bradley Course beginning at 10:00 am.

since the start of last season.

Senior Samantha Canning then put the icing on the cake as she scored on a penalty kick, the second time she did that this season, making it 3-0 which stood the rest of the way. Last Wednesday, Wilmington shut out Rockport, 3-0. Bozzella led the way offensively as she set up Danielle Bamberg, who scored the first goal, before adding the team's final two goals in the second half with assists going to Brittney McLaughlin and Amanda Stone, respectively.

Leah Potcner made three saves inbetween the posts for the shut out, while, Taryn Martinello and Lauren Nasiff also played well for the Wildcats.

On Friday, Wilmington topped Amesbury, 4-1. Katelyn Maggio, Katie Cole, Bozzella and Kaitlyn Sousa each had a goal, while, Chin, Bamberg, Charlotte Jensen and Colleen Kennedy had one assist each. Bozzella notched her 12th goal in 15 games.

Potcner made four saves in the net to get another win, while, Martinello continues to play very well in the midfield.

Wilmington closes out the regular season with two games, a road trip to Georgetown on Thursday afternoon, before hosting Tewksbury on Monday night under the lights beginning at 7:00 pm.

"I'm hoping that we can close out the two games with wins because we could possibly get a home game in the tournament and it would obviously help us get a better seed for the tournament," said Hendee.

Wilmington Pop Warner round-up

The Wilmington E-Blue Pop Warner football team traveled to Wakefield on Sunday morning and delivered its best performance of the season so far. The Wildcat offense had nearly 250 yards on touchdown runs alone, and the defense intercepted a pass, recovered two fumbles and held Wakefield scoreless until late in the game.

improved upon each week.

Neal, who has scored seven touchdowns for the Wildcats in the last two weeks, stepped aside and Woods took off on a 45-yard touchdown run for the final Wilmington score of the game. Quarterback Tim Benoit run up the middle for the extra point.

Wakefield would score a late

The Cats started the game by kicking off to the Warriors. Great defense in the first quarter for the Cats was given by Cam Collins, Austin Ferreira, John Walsh & Ben Gillis. another tough loss this weekend, but not without a fight. The dedication and heart of this team, despite their record is something for them to be proud of. The A Team welcomed back their injured quarterback, Sean Hanley this weekend in a game against Wakefield.

The four captains Sean Hanley, Cody Nilsen, Nick P and Matt McKenna take the field for the coin toss, the toss was won by Wakefield and Wilmington gets ready to kick the ball. The defensive team of Nick Powers, James Welch, James Perry, Derek Duggan, Matt McKenna, Sean Hanley, Nathan Downs, John Parsons, Derek Queen, Cody Nilsen and Scott Layton do their best to keep Wakefield out of the end zone, but Wakefield goes in for and early lead of 6 to 0. Defense blocks the extra point and now it is time for Wilmington to get the ball. Wakefield kicks the ball, which is picked up by Matt McKenna and run for 15 yards before being taken down.

The next play has John Parsons going up the middle for a gain of about 5 yards. Matt McKenna has a nice run for the first down. Things are starting to look up for the A Team as they continue to push forward, but unfortunately they won't score on this drive. Defense takes over with a great tackle by Derek Duggan and a pass blocked by Matt McKenna, but once again Wakefield could not be held and the score is 14 to 0.

The third quarter it looked like the cats might come alive with a 20 yard pass to Matt McKenna, and another great pass by Sean Hanley to Derek Duggan for Wilmington's only touchdown of the game. Also in the third quarter was a nice breakaway run for John Parsons for about 30 yards before being taken down by Wakefield.

Major efforts were made on both the first and second offensive and defensive lines of Jim Welch, Cam Babine, John Anderson, Tom Letelleier, Sean Cavanaugh, Chris Houde, Mike Smith, Sean Woodbury, Killian Smith and Shawn Adams, but Wakefield would go on to score two more times for a final score of 28 to 6.

None of the great plays today would have been possible without the determination of the line making some great blocks and continuing to make the holes for these guys to go through. The heart of this team does not just lay with the great runs and passes, but with the total effort of these boys working together no matter what the score or what quarter it is.

We would like to thank the A-Team coaches and assistant coaches for their time and dedication to this team, as well as the A-Team cheerleaders for their support. Also thank you to all the parents and fans and a special thank you to Greg McKenna and Wayne Parsons for doing the chains.

A Team

The Wilmington A-Team had

Thanks to the great offensive blocks, Wilmington C-Team's Johnny Spears successfully carries the ball in for a 8 yard gain. This run set Wilmington up for their third touchdown of the game. The Cats won 19-0 and have an 5-2 record. (courtesy photo)

Big plays on both sides of the ball marked Wilmington's effort early in the game. On the offense's first possession, running back Brian Neal turned a negative into a positive when he picked up a fumbled pitch and wound his way 55 yards to the end zone for a touchdown. Wakefield then took the following kickoff and drove deep into Wildcat territory, but a tackle by Wilmington's Neal and Tim Benoit on the one-yard line kept them from scoring.

Taking over at their own one-yard line, Wilmington gained some breathing room when Scott Newton smartly recovered a fumble that gave the Wildcats a first down. Neal then darted 80 yards down the right sideline for another touchdown and Matt Woods ran in the extra point.

The defense shut out Wakefield for the remainder of the first half, with Neal intercepting a pass and Newton sacking the quarterback on Wakefield's next two possessions.

Into the second half, two big plays by Neal produced the next Wilmington touchdown. Playing defense he recovered a Wakefield fumble at the Wildcat 35-yard line, then on offense he ran 65 yards for his third touchdown of the game. Newton later stripped a Wakefield runner of the ball and recovered the fumble at mid-field. The three turnovers produced by the Wildcat defense showed their ability to make plays in addition to the solid tackling skills they have touchdown, but that did not deter from a superb performance by the 'Cats. All of the players contributed on offense and defense. That included Jeremy Frost, Jack Bertolami, Chance Harper, Connor Robinson, Charles Minghella, Nick Haddad, Jack Stanford, Mike Stanford, Fox Maxwell, Connor Bailey, Mason Ouelette, Jack Sweeney, Tyler DeJesus, Robert Peterson, Joe Hydorn and Brendan Daly.

Also making the trip to Wakefield and braving the early-morning cold to cheer on the Wildcats was the E Cheerleading team coached by Marybeth Pudvelis, Danielle Underwood and Alicia Nazzaro. Cheerleaders Hannah Burns, Erica Pudvelis, Amanda Boyle, Kaila Bavin, Katie Thompson, Rachel Spada, Natalia Terra, Christina Cox, Jessica Arbeely, Kasandra Delaney, Megan Gentile, Jocelyn Sullivan, Jennifer Dovidio, Katelyn Newton, Allison Warren, Kaleigh Dunn, Morgan Dibenedetto, Abygail Shedd and Alyssa Milano have been the team's biggest supporters all season.

With three strong games in a row now, the young 'Cats football team finishes its season this coming Sunday with a showdown at Reading.

Wilmington's D-Blue Pop Warner Football team faced Wakefield's D-1 Warriors on Sunday October 22th. The Wildcats lost a tough fought battle 13-12.

Under 11-2 Girls travel to Woburn

The Wilmington Girls U11-2 youth soccer travel team faced Lowell last Saturday in chilly temperatures at the Woburn Street field.

The start of the game appeared to be a wide open contest between two well matched teams. Both teams applied pressure on their opposing goal keepers until the ice was finally broken by Wilmington's center striker Kayla Slavin who drove the ball through the Lowell keeper's hands for the Wildcats' first goal.

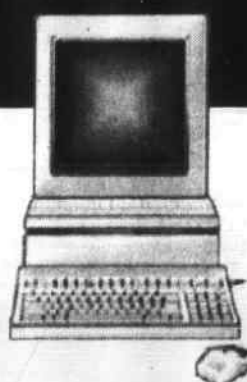

From that point Wilmington's superior passing and playmaking by Sara Ennis and Olivia Dellorusso led to goals by Presley Silva, Lauren Amazeen, Michelina Brown and Sydnee Russo. The Wildcats defensive pressure led by Maryanna Dirupo, Emily Bamberg, Diana Cunningham and Marina Otis kept the ball in the offensive zone.

The shut-out was accomplished by the brilliant goal keeping of Michelle Alonardo and Nicole Potcner. The girl's missed the speed and versatility of teammate Shauna Mazzie who was out with an injury. The final score of 5-0 reflected the unselfish teamwork displayed by the Wildcats.

Rams football team opens league schedule with convincing win

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

BILLERICA - The Shawsheen Tech football team opened their CAC Large schedule on Saturday afternoon at Samuel J. Cassidy Field and they did so in impressive fashion, winning their sixth game in a row by routing rival Lynn Tech by a score of 31-6 in a game that served as a tuneup for a huge game this weekend against undefeated CAC rival Whittier.

If the Rams were looking ahead to Whittier they certainly showed no signs of it in this one as they dominated the game from start to finish and took advantage of several Lynn Tech mistakes to go out to a 13-0 halftime lead before blowing the game open in the third quarter to improve their record to 6-1 overall (1-0 CAC Large).

Once again it was the Shawsheen running game that made the difference as the Rams piled up 304 yards on the ground, led by junior Pat Fullerton's 148 yards and two touchdowns on just 14 carries. The Rams also recovered three Lynn Tech fumbles on kickoffs and took full advantage each time, scoring 19 points off of the turnovers.

Shawsheen was without the services of starting quarterback Joe Gore of Wilmington for the first half, as he had missed almost the entire week of practice due to illness, but sophomore Shaun Miller did a fine job of directing the offense and the Rams were never seriously challenged.

"I thought our offensive line and our tight ends did a great job blocking while our running backs ran very hard and blocked very well for each other," Shawsheen coach Al Costabile said.

Most of the Rams drives on the day were of the short variety due to the Lynn Tech miscues, but on their first series of the game they showed they could certainly sustain a long drive if necessary as they marched 74 yards on seven plays to take the lead.

Shawsheen Tech Sports teams wrapping up regular seasons

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

The Shawsheen Tech girls soccer team is wrapping up their regular season later this week and will begin preparation for the Division 3 North tournament where they figure to be a very high seed based on their outstanding performance throughout the regular season.

The Lady Rams continued that outstanding regular season this past week with two more wins to improve their record to 13-3 overall and 11-2 in the CAC.

Last Wednesday afternoon Shawsheen traveled to Lexington and came away with a 4-0 victory over Minuteman Tech and followed that up on Friday with another 4-0 win, this time over Lynn Tech at Shawsheen.

The Lady Rams dominated both games, allowing only three shots on goal against Minuteman and not allowing any shots against Lynn Tech, a second year varsity program.

Coach Doug Michaud is happy to see his team keep piling up the wins, but he knows these games, particularly against Lynn Tech are not a great barometer of where his team stands.

"It's tough to tell," Michaud said. "Against Lynn Tech we cut it down to two 30 minute halves and then at halftime decided to make it 20 minutes because it was raining. It was a quick game."

Against Lynn Tech the Lady Rams got goals from captain Kayla O'Leary, along with three local players, as Wilmington's Jenn Carroll, Ashley Antico and Stef Warnick all scored. Goalie Kim Stockton of Tewksbury was not called upon for a lot of action, but she made all the saves she needed to and earned her sixth shutout of the season.

Against Minuteman, the whole team was able to see some playing time and the Lady Rams got goals from O'Leary, Carroll, Jenna Zechner and Tewksbury's Janel Madore, who scored her first varsity goal.

Michaud was pleased to see the freshman Madore take advantage of seeing some playing time.

"She is probably number one or number two on the team as far as speed, but she is in a tough spot because there are two or three very strong midfielders ahead of her so it is hard for her to get in," Michaud said. "But she has played some defense for us as well and has always done a great job, so it was nice to see her score."

When the Lady Rams do move on to the tournament they may have to do so without the services of O'Leary. The captain was injured in the Lynn Tech win and it seems unlikely that she will be back for tournament play.

"We will miss her if she is out," Michaud said. "The team is very strong throughout, so we don't lose a lot in that way, but her leadership will be tough to replace."

O'Leary currently co-leads Shawsheen in scoring with 15 goals and 13 assists for 28 points, along with Zechner who has 21 goals and seven assists. Carroll is next in scoring with 17 goals and six assists for 23 points.

Boys Soccer

The boys soccer team at the Tech is also closing in on a post season berth with three games remaining in their season and holding an 8-6-1 overall record the Rams must earn at least a tie in one of the games in order to qualify.

The Rams were set to take on Lower Division rival Greater Lawrence on Tuesday and another Lower Division rival Minuteman on Friday with Upper Division Northeast sandwiched in the middle on Wednesday.

Results of the games were not available as of press time, but at least two of those games looked very winnable. Still Shawsheen coach Dick Barris was taking nothing for granted heading into the week.

"I would like to think we can go 2-1, but 3-0 would be much better as far as getting a possible home game," Barris said. "But on the other hand Greater Lawrence beat us last time even though we out shot them by a lot and that could happen again, and Minuteman tired Blackstone 0-0 the other day so they seem to much improved, and Northeast an Upper Division school so they are always tough."

The Rams sent 1-1 in their two most recent games, both against non-league rival Lowell Catholic. On Saturday afternoon the Rams earned a 2-1 victory with a late goal being the difference in the final score, while on Monday the Rams suffered just the opposite fate, coming back from a 2-0 deficit to tie the game, only to fall by a score of 3-2 when Lowell Catholic scored a late goal.

In Monday's game the Rams fell behind by two goals in the first ten minutes, but goals by Corey Fleishman and Andy Maga tied the game before the half. The score remained that way until six minutes remained in the game when Greater Lowell potted the game winner. "They were both good games," Barris said. "From my point of view I felt we controlled play in both games and we should have scored more, but that is not always how it works out. Lowell Catholic has beaten some quality teams this year and their win over us qualified them for the tournament."

As for the Rams qualifying for the tournament, even though they only need one point to qualify, Barris would prefer not to have to wait until the season's final game to earn that point.

"Hopefully we can take care of business today (Tuesday) and we don't have to worry about it," Barris said. "Then you are just playing for a possible home game and seeding. But we have to take it one game at a time."

Golf

The Shawsheen golf team recently wrapped up a highly successful season that saw them go 13-1 overall and win their second consecutive CAC championship. The Rams only loss of the season came to Billerica High School of the MVC.

Last week the Rams participated in the Division 3 North Sectionals and managed to finish in the top 10 out of 19 teams, while junior captain Brandon Porter earned himself a trip to the state championship tournament.

While coach Tom Struthers would have liked to have seen his team do a little better in the Sectional tournament, he was thrilled with his team's performance throughout the year.

"I think it was a great season for us," Struthers said. "We had the whole rush of going undefeated for a while and even after that ended we bounced right back and won again."

Not only did the Rams keep winning this season, but they did so against some stiff competition, with many non-league matches going their way.

"I am happy that we were able to play teams like Andover and Waltham and come out on top and going to the voke tournament and coming in second was better than we have ever done before," Struthers said.

"Overall it was a great year and I was very happy with the way we played and I am looking forward to next year."

All of the Rams top five players will return to the lineup next season.

Giant match-up this Saturday for Shawsheen Tech Football team

By MIKE IPPOLITO
& JAMIE POTE

The Shawsheen Tech football team will be looking not only to continue their great play of late and increase their winning streak to seven games on Saturday morning when they travel to Haverhill to take on Whittier Tech, but they will also be looking to take a giant step towards a possible CAC Large championship.

It is still early in the CAC schedule for both teams, but the winner of this game would clearly have the inside track to the title. Whittier already took a huge step in the direction of the title last week with a dominating 24-13 win over five time defending CAC champion Tyngsboro, improving their record to 7-0 overall and 2-0 in the CAC Large.

A win for Whittier would leave only undefeated Greater Lowell as a legitimate threat to their path to the title. Shawsheen (6-1, 1-0) still has work to do even if they come away with a victory, with both Greater Lowell and Tyngsboro still on the schedule, but a win would still be huge at this point in the season. "You don't want to talk about it too early, but if we win we do gain the inside track and we become the team to beat," Costabile said. "At that point we would control our own destiny so it is definitely a huge game that has implications for the post season."

This past Saturday, Whittier Tech upset five time CAC Champion Tyngsboro, 24-13. Whittier chalked up 357 total yards of offense with all of it coming on the ground (they did complete 2-of-6 passes for 0 yards).

The team's big running back, Jason Pena had just 15 rushing yards but did score twice.

"This is one of the biggest wins in the history of the program," said Whittier coach Kevin Bradley, who has also had tremendous success with the Wildcats girls basketball team. "You always have to knock off the giant first and we knocked off the giant (on Saturday). The season isn't over. I have to put this team back down to earth (on Monday), including myself."

"We have another big game this Saturday against Shawsheen and that will be another game of two unbeaten teams in the league. They are very good and we have to gear up for that challenge."

Whatever happens on Saturday it would be difficult for the teams to match the drama of last season's epic battle, which saw Whittier come away with a 58-56 win in five overtimes. The score stood tied at 20-20 at the end of regulation before the teams hooked up in the five dramatic overtime periods, with the teams trading scores in each period before the Rams were finally stopped on a two point conversion attempt in the fifth overtime.

Pena scored all five Whittier touchdowns in the extra sessions. Pena, who also plays defensive back for the Wildcats, reportedly has received a scholarship offer from the University of Delaware and Costabile believes he has certainly earned that type of recognition.

"He is really a great athlete. He is a special type of kid on both sides of the ball," Costabile said. "Believe it or not we worry about him just as much on defense as we do on offense because he is the type of kid, who if he picks the ball off can bring it all the way back the other way."

Penney has also been outstanding for the Wildcats. After missing several games due to injury, he returned last week and rushed for 205 yards against Tyngsboro, while teammate Thane Sanford added 107 yards on the ground.

"Penney gives them another healthy type of dimension and he will run hard for four quarters," Costabile said. "You better tackle him just as hard in the fourth quarter as you do in the first or those five yard gains will turn into big plays."

While the Wildcats certainly have several some very talented players for the Rams to contend with, the Wildcats will have no easy time of it stopping the Rams. Shawsheen has rushed for over 1,500 yards as a team on the season with freshman Chris Clark (624 yards) and junior Pat Fullerton (456 yards) doing the bulk of the damage.

While Costabile certainly respects Whittier and knows his team will be in for a stiff challenge on Saturday, he is also quite pleased with the work his team has done to put themselves in position to play in such a big game at this point in the season.

"This is what you hope for. You work hard in the pre season and you hope to win games in September and if you take care of business in October you will be playing meaningful games in November," Costabile said. "I think that is the goal of every team, to have big games in November, and this is our first step towards doing that."

Rams come away with convincing win

Fullerton capped the drive with a 40 yard run, breaking tackles at the line of scrimmage before getting to the outside and streaking down the right sideline for the score with 7:09 left in the first quarter.

Perhaps the only part of the Rams game to suffer on Saturdays was their extra point attempts as they missed four of five opportunities, including this one, leaving the score at 6-0.

The Rams did however, excel very much in another area of their kicking game as they either squib kicked or kicked the ball to one of the Tiger up men on each kickoff, and the strategy paid huge dividends, including on the ensuing kickoff after their first touchdown when Derek Sorenson grabbed the first of his two recoveries, setting Shawsheen up at the Tiger 33 yard line.

Five plays later, freshman Chris Clark (12 carries, 95 yards, two touchdowns), took a toss to the right side and scampered 18 yards for his 11th touchdown of the season to make the score 13-0 after Ryan McLaughlin's extra point with 4:28 left in the opening quarter.

The Rams had a couple more opportunities to score during the remainder of the first half, but could not quite finish the job, including a drive late in the half when they marched to the Tiger seven yard line before a fumble stopped their scoring chance.

Fortunately for the Rams their defense was playing so well that they had already scored all of the points they would need. The Rams got outstanding defensive efforts from among others, holding Lynn Tech to just 47 total yards in the first half and 82 yards for the entire game.

Despite their apparent dominance, however, it was still just a two touchdown game heading into halftime. The tight score did not really surprise Costabile, who saw his team get upset by Lynn Tech last season. "It's always a battle against Lynn Tech. You always know they are going to be well coached and well prepared," Costabile said. "You really have to take advantage of any chances you have and we did that."

What had been a close game quickly turned into a blowout within the first three minutes of the second half when Lynn Tech fumbled two consecutive kickoffs. The first came on the opening kickoff of the half when Shawn Pimentel recovered for the Rams at the Tiger 30 yard line.

On the next play Fullerton scored his second touchdown of the game and fifth of the season with a tremendous run, making several cuts in the open field to extend the lead to 19-0.

Moments later Sorenson picked up his second fumble of the day at the Lynn Tech 26 yard line and with Gore now entering the game, the Rams on third and long took to the air and Gore hit Tewksbury's Joe Killion perfectly in stride at about the one yard line for a 25 yard touchdown pass and a 25-0 lead with 8:35 left in the third quarter.

"We had a good thing going with our squib kicks," Costabile said. "It gave us some short fields to work with and we took advantage. I think our special teams were tremendous today."

Shawsheen's final score of the afternoon was set up by an interception by Dave Albano, who picked off Lynn Tech quarterback Jose Rios on the Tigers first possession of the second half. Four plays later Clark made sure the turnover paid off by scoring from one yard out on a blast through the middle of the Shawsheen line. Clark had set the touchdown up one play earlier with a brilliant 42 yard run.

On Saturday the Rams will travel to Haverhill to take on undefeated Whittier, in a battle for mid season CAC supremacy. Whittier knocked off perennial CAC champion Tyngsboro on Saturday and will bring a perfect 7-0 record into the contest.

Last season, the Rams fell to Whittier 58-56 in a five overtime classic in Billerica.

Artist, David Olsen

David Olsen, Redrawing history at WMHS

By DOUG WOOD-BOYLE

For Woburn born and raised caricaturist David Olsen it is definitely better the second time around as he puts the finishing touches on 92 drawings he has restored for hanging in the new Woburn High School gymnasium. Olsen was the original artist on the project that was the brain-child of the late Carl Torrice, a former school committee member and recreation department commissioner.

"(The first time around) it wasn't a big thing to me," Olsen said. "Carl would come and say you need to do three or four more."

"Now it is a beautiful thing and means a lot to me. Carl would be happy. I hope they continue the project."

Torrice and Olsen started the series of 92 pictures in 1981 and the first pictures were hung in May of that year. According to Olsen, it was Torrice's idea as a way to honor the top athletes in their sports. However, in the second year of the project it was decided to honor only those that made all-scholastic.

"He was great for making sure that the kids got the recognition," Olsen said of Torrice.

The project continued until Torrice passed away in 1995 and all of the pictures were hung near the gym that was named for Torrice in the old high school.

Olsen recalled, "At the old high school they ran out of room. The pictures ended up being hung in hallways and stairways leading to the girls' and boys' locker rooms."

However, when plans were announced for the construction of a new high school, Olsen wondered what the fate of the pictures would be. He went to Athletic Director/Hockey Coach James Duran, who also has a caricature on the wall, and suggested that if the artwork was not moved to the new high school then the families of the athletes should be notified to come and take them if they wanted too.

However, Duran got behind the project and was able to get a place set aside in the new school for the pictures. The first row, containing pictures of players from 1917 to 1977, were hung in the lobby that serves as the entrance to the main high school and the athletic department, in time for the October 15 dedication of the school.

Room has been set aside for two more rows, one will be 1970 to 1980 and the other will be from 1980's through 1995. According to Olsen, there is room in the display career started in 1975 while he was still a student at Woburn High School.

WOBURN'S DAVID OLSEN IS PUTTING THE FINISHING TOUCHES ON 92 DRAWINGS he has restored for hanging in the new Woburn Memorial High School gymnasium. The project was a way to honor top athletes. Olsen has also done work for the Boston Bruins, Boston Celtics, Boston Red Sox, New England Patriots and boxing great John Ruiz.

"I couldn't play sports," Olsen said, "so this was my way of contributing to the sports program."

Olsen was able to reap another benefit from doing the restoration project. He had chance to show off his work to his 14 year-old daughter Danielle, also an art student at Woburn High.

Olsen started professionally with the Daily Times Chronicle. Over the years he has gone national and his work has won several awards and is published in several national magazines.

According to his biography, his creations including, cartoons, illustrations and championship posters have appeared in daily and weekly newspapers throughout New England as well as across the United States. Being an artist in Massachusetts has given him exposure in such newspapers as: The Boston Herald, Boston Globe, Lawrence Eagle Tribune, Providence Journal and The Daily Times Chronicle.

area if the School decides to continue the project, an idea he noted that Duran is backing.

For the original pictures, Torrice did all of the research. However, according to Olsen, once the first set was put on display, families of past stars started to appear and report on the feats of their fathers, brothers, sons and daughters.

On his website (www.dave-olsenartwork.com) Olsen states "I did the first group of portraits that were placed in the Torrice Gymnasium of the original Woburn High School, Sunday May 31, 1981 and I always considered it a great honor to be the one to do this artwork. It gives me a tremendous amount of pride that they are in such a beautiful new home."

Once the decision was made to move the pictures to the new space, Duran was also responsible for keeping the restoration in the family. He approached Olsen's wife, Janet, who owns Authentic Awards.com about redoing the plaques and getting the reframing done.

This is the point where it was discovered just how big a job restoring the pictures would be. According to Olsen, damaged frames were the least of the problem.

The original frame company had glued the mattes to the pictures so that it was difficult to take them out without damaging them. Also, some of the pictures had been hung in such a fashion that screw holes had been drilled right through the frame and the picture into the wall.

"When I got the pictures they were in awful shape," Olsen said.

He noted that no precautions had been used to protect the pictures from sun damage. As a result, the artist had to take digital photos of the original pictures and recreate them.

The new frames are being done by New England Art and Frame, a Malden based company that specializes in restoration and large framing jobs. Janet Olsen recommended the company for the project.

As a part of the restoration, Olsen has applied a special ultraviolet ray protective spray on the new drawings to protect against fading. Special glass is also being used in the frames as an added protection.

It is natural for Olsen to have been chosen as the artist for both the original project and for the restoration. His art

"FLAGS OF OUR FATHERS" RESPECTFUL

U.S. MARINES OF THE 28TH REGIMENT, 5th Division, raise the American flag atop Mt. Suribachi, Iwo Jima, on Feb. 23, 1945. Strategically located only 660 miles from Tokyo, the Pacific island became the site of one of the bloodiest, most famous battles of World War II against Japan. Clint Eastwood's film 'Flags of our Fathers' opened last weekend.

"FLAGS OF OUR FATHERS"
GRADE: ***
 Very few directors could get away with making a movie that idolizes the soldiers who fought at Iwo Jima while debunking traditional notions of heroism, but Clint Eastwood is one of them. "Flags of Our Fathers" honors the men of the Greatest Generation while reminding us that heroic stories always involve a lie or two. Eastwood has no political axes to grind, no fingers to point. He has respectfully adapted the book by James Bradley (whose father was the Navy Corpsman in the famous flag-raising photo, along with five Marines), and have managed to go beyond the image of Old Glory rising over Japanese soil to tell us things we never knew or have forgotten. The well-acted movie jumps back and forth between the assault on the island and the return of three of the flag-raisers to help with the war effort at home. The storytelling is a little confusing for the first half.

The filmmakers pay tribute to the bravery of the men who took Mount Suribachi from the Japanese while acknowledging that friendly fire killed some of our troops. They capture the near-holy moment in the photograph yet remind us that this was the second flag to be erected, and the photographer got there too late for the true historic moment. Most crucially, Eastwood and company reveal the turmoil of the war bond tour by Navy Corpsman John "Doc"

Bradley (Ryan Phillippe) and Marines Ira Hayes (Adam Beach) and Rene Gagnon (Jesse Bradford). They were used to rally an America that was tired of war, a nation that wondered in April 1945 when the good fight against the imperialist Germans and Japanese would ever end.

The star-struck Gagnon, who never fired on the enemy and worked as a runner during the assault, wants to capitalize on post-war employment opportunities and hopes futilely that the trip will extend his brief fame.

Hayes, discriminated against in private life because he's a Pima Indian, is already wrestling with the alcoholism that will kill him.

The quiet Bradley, destined for a long and satisfying life as a mortician, holds them together and does his fund-raising duty with the same conscientiousness he showed on the battlefield.

None of the three thinks of himself as a hero. None is boastful or self-promoting.

Eastwood's film reminds us that fame never lasts, while it is our duty to make sure that the history behind that fame is never forgotten.

"THE DEPARTED"

GRADE: ***
 "The Departed" returns director Martin Scorsese to familiar turf: the gangster family of men and the mean streets they inhabit and turn crimson with the blood of anyone standing in their way. It reminds viewers of his classic work "GoodFellas," but without that masterpiece's coherence, clarity, urgency or sense of discovery.

But even despite this, it is superior to almost anything released this year and is a disappointment only when compared with his previous accomplishments.

"The Departed" is a remake of the Hong Kong film "Infernal Affairs," and its story is universal. It is elevated though by Scorsese's artistry and, in particular, by Jack Nicholson's effortless take as an Irish mob boss.

"The Departed" is about two Boston cops pretending to be what they are not. Matt Damon is a fresh-scrubbed overachiever, and Leonardo DiCaprio is his moody, scruffy, hotheaded opposite. Beneath the surface, Damon is a mob informant who was recruited into Nicholson's organization as a child and is working his way up the law enforcement food chain, while DiCaprio is a police officer who has been ordered to infiltrate Nicholson's mob by his superiors, played by Martin Sheen and Mark Wahlberg, who disavow any knowledge of his activities. They burrow into their respective organizations on parallel tracks that inevitably intersect when each is ordered to ferret out the other; Damon and DiCaprio do not even appear together until the climactic sequences.

But Nicholson is the centerpiece around which everything revolves. He gives a volatile "Scarface" of a performance, driven by internal combustion, without raising his voice or breaking a sweat, and is the corrosive constant in a tale that loses momentum as it grows convoluted. After a montage that has become a Scorsese trademark, in which characters are introduced and their trajectories set in motion through kinetic bursts of information, the film assumes a mandatory and almost procedural arc that never develops beyond these established structural and behavioral parameters.

WORK, WORK, WORK

Patch work in Winchester

"Preliminary plans for the former Pansy Patch on Cambridge Street, showing up to 47 townhouse units, went before the Planning Board," notes the Winchester edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"The first plan presented was a simple division of the land into four lots with a central cul de sac to access them. This plan, however, was simply a formality or 'placeholder,' a means of starting the subdivision process."

"Once the Planning Board approved it, Mark Vaughan, attorney for the owners, Duffy Realty, produced two other plans showing more what they would like to build."

"The area is zoned residential (RDB), which allows single family housing or cluster housing on lots of 10 acres or more. The first plan showed a development of 23 single-family homes which could be done without any zoning changes. The houses would be accessed by a roadway going from Cambridge Street to Salisbury Street and by a cul de sac built off that roadway."

"However, Vaughan said, they understood that the neighborhood would not like the cut-through to Salisbury Street and that 23 single family homes with school kids could be 'frightening' to the municipal budget."

"Since the former farm is just over 10 acres in size, Vaughan said they looked at the section on cluster housing in the zoning bylaw and determined that it allowed for fewer units, specifically 17."

"However, with a zoning change to allow attached cluster housing, they could build 47 units. The last plan Vaughan showed outlined 47 units attached in groups of two, three and four. These units would be accessed by a roadway circling through the property. Although that road was also shown to connect to Salisbury Street, Vaughan said it could be gated or limited to emergency vehicles."

"Vaughan said they would like to work with the board on an appropriate attached cluster by-law for Fall Town Meeting...."

Road work in Burlington

"Construction of Network Drive Extension (the MITRE Link) continues to be in the funding cycle for work to start in calendar 2007," notes the Burlington edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"The roadway, part of a wide-ranging traffic plan for the Middlesex Turnpike-Route 62 (Bedford Street) area, will run in a semi-circle from Route 62 to Middlesex Turnpike, crossing a portion of the MITRE property, connecting with the latter roadway just south of the Billerica line."

"The project has been delayed several years from its original construction date."

"It is the final piece of several road projects which are being done in conjunction with Sun Microsystems locating a campus on Network Drive."

"The timetable for completion of the MITRE Link is 18 months."

"When the roadway is finished, through traffic south-bound will be diverted off Middlesex Turnpike and can get back on the turnpike after traveling Network Drive Extension and Network Drive."

"Town Administrator Robert Mercier reported that the 100 percent design phase for the project has been completed."

"Construction will be financed through state and federal funds...."

Hard work ahead in Reading

"The diligence and hard work of the Initiative Against Substance Abuse Study Committee has turned up some unsettling statistics about the substance abuse problem in this community," notes the Reading edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"However, instead of sticking its collective head in the sand, work will go forward in an attempt to at least mitigate, if not solve, the problem."

"In its report, the Study Committee quoted Albert Einstein, who stated, 'We can't solve problems by using the same kind of thinking we used when we created them.'"

"In their report the committee members stated: 'A solution to this problem will certainly require innovative thinking.'"

"The Committee also noted that the report, which will be given again during Town Meeting, is not the solution but the '...beginning of a long journey,' which all members of the community are requested to join."

"According to the statistics taken from the Death Certificates on file in Town Hall, the community has seen a total of 16 deaths by substance abuse since 2003, not including statistics for 2006, which are not yet available. Of these, 11 deaths were related to drug overdose with a high of five in 2004, and another four were by alcohol abuse over the three year period."

"In the same period, 25 Reading residents survived drug overdoses and two more have been reported as surviving in the first two months of this year. However, according to police and fire department records, there have been a total of 31 cases where people survived the effects of overdoses of prescription drugs, illegal drugs and/or alcohol in the same period from 2003 to February of this year...."

within, you'll find an owner's pride that radiates character and warmth throughout this inviting, classic Colonial-style home.

From S-1

Gaming Today, Las Vegas, NV. His commitment to his craft as well as to the New England area has also earned him due recognition; winning three New England Press Awards for Best Cartoon and Illustration and also winning The Massachusetts Press Award for Best Cartoon.

Olsen has done work for the Boston Bruins, Boston Celtics, Boston Red Sox, New England Patriots and boxing great John Ruiz. He has also done a full collection of full size posters for the Daily Times Chronicle depicting the Celtics, Patriots and Bruins in their championship seasons.

All of this is from a person with very little formal art training. Because of family circumstances at the time and the fact that many people were already paying him for his art work, he got by with just a few classes at the Massachusetts College of Art.

However, some of his best work now comes from his students at the Eastern Middlesex Association of Retarded Citizens. Olsen has been a part-time art teacher at the Reading facility for the past six years.

"I had never worked before with people who have special needs," Olsen said. "I was hesitant at first but came to see how wonderful it is to work with people who have been bypassed."

Olsen will be at the Greater Boston Sports Collectors Convention and Show November 3, 4, and 5 at the Shriners Auditorium, Fordham Road (off Concord Street) in Wilmington. He will have many of his works for sale and will welcome friends and be answering questions.

also boasts a soaring cathedral ceiling and skylight that lends to this home's overall comfortable and "roomy" feel.

This lovely kitchen, the heart of the home, is, no doubt, the one place family and friends alike will come to gather. The convenience of a half bath and mudroom are also found, plus you will enjoy the added benefit of a first floor family room as well. Fresh paint, rich natural woodwork and gleaming wide pine floors also add to this home's already distinct and charming appeal.

Character and space continue upstairs where fresh paint and wide pine floors also await. A master bedroom and two additional bedrooms are yours, all offering flexibility. One of the bedrooms is presently being used as a cozy computer room. There is a full ceramic tile bath and the walk-in closet, located off the hallway, provides more than ample space for linens and other belongings.

Speaking of space: venture upstairs to this home's third level and you will find an amazing front-to-back bedroom that spans the entire length of the house. This room features two built-in closets and wall-to-wall carpeting. The possibilities are endless: use this room for artist space or the workroom you've always dreamed of, a playroom for the kids, or perhaps a spacious in-home office.

Outside, every aspect of this home is as impressive as it is within. Step from the kitchen to the private patio surrounded by a lovely lattice fence, an ideal spot in which to relax and take meals during the warmer months.

There is not one, but two driveways: rest assured, guests will not have to worry about parking as these driveways hold a combined total of at least 10 cars. And then there is the barn: an impeccably kept three story structure that offers additional storage and living space.

The lower level has a cement floor and offers generous room for landscaping tools and heavier equipment. Need additional space to store clothing? You will surely appreciate the large cedar room (yes, an entire room, not just a closet!) complete with deep shelves located on the heated second level. A front-to-back workshop is also found on this level. The third level, which is also heated, offers a huge bonus room with closet to be used as you wish.

This outstanding, one-of-a-kind home is listed with ERA Andrew Realty for $499,900. Don't miss the opportunity to view this home personally by attending the Open House to be held at 127 Church Street, Wilmington on Sunday, October 29 from 1:00PM-3:00PM. For further information, or to schedule a private showing, please call ERA Andrew Realty at: 781-438-7220 or visit www.ERAAndrew.com.

•THE FRIENDS OF READING RECREATION, in cooperation with the Town of Reading's Recreation Department, hosted its 1st Annual Columbus Day Kids Ball Hockey Tournament. For a $10 registration fee that included a long sleeved FORR t-shirt and 70 degree weather, over 60 kids from first to fifth grade competed in the all-day, 2 game elimination tournament filled with high energy and friendly competition among the kids and fun-filled banter and chest-pounding by their volunteer/parent coaches.

Great performances were seen by all teams, including Coach Mark Richards' young but talented crew and Coaches Ken Fay and Carlo Casciani's skilled, yet sunburned, "skins" team. Coach John Davie's gang made a run for it, but was stonewalled by the "Terrible Tangos" in an edge of your seat semi-final game.

Coach Brian Tobin, who was instrumental in organizing the event, was surprisingly shut down early with back to back losses, eliminating him and his team before lunch. Undeclared through-ultimately fell to defeat in an end to end championship game against the "Terrible Tangos" under the passionate tutelage of Dominic Tango. In an unusual but bold "go for it" move, Turenne, down by 3 goals with one shift remaining in the championship round, pulled his goalie for the full shift leaving wide open nets for the Terrible Tangos to seal the deal with multiple open-netters.

In the end, every kid was an MVP because they spent the day playing a game they love with friends they enjoy. And while they played their hearts out in front of their parents many Reading friends and neighbors enjoyed the newly renovated Tot Lot on Bancroft Avenue. As is the goal of any FORR event, it was a fun-filled inexpensive affair for everyone who participated as well as for those who simply came to watch.

The Logs have been very successful over the past few years, with tracks selected to the Best of College A Cappella (BOAC) compilation on 2003, 2004 and 2005.

Opening the program will be the Winchester High School Octets, under the direction of Ms. Sabrina Quintanna. Local celebrities in the Winchester area, they perform both contemporary and old favorites using close knit harmonies.

Morrison, sounds good while Boston looks great on film.

"The Departed" features consistently significant and award-worthy performances throughout, from Alec Baldwin's pot-bellied special agent to Wahlberg and Sheen's good cop/bad cop routine.

But dominant are Damon's boy next door, corrupted and rotting from within; DiCaprio, whose deep fears and guilt are manifested in the twitch and squint of a man hiding something; and the hooded, bloodshot eyes and devilish grin of the incomparable Nicholson, as another ruthless Scorsese archetype, covered in the blood of the departed.

"THE GUARDIAN"

GRADE: **
"The Guardian" replicates some of the better military movies over the past three decades, including "An Officer and a Gentleman," along with "Top Gun" and perhaps "Full Metal Jacket." But "The Guardian" is not about military combat training; the focus instead is on the U.S. Coast Guard Rescue Swimmers, an elite group with their motto, "So that others may live." Americans learned all about their heroics during the civilian rescue attempts from the floodwater of Hurricane Katrina, photos of which appear as the end credits roll.

Kevin Costner stars as Ben Randall, a legendary senior chief who loses his rescue crew in a tragic accident off the coast of Alaska. Suffering from the psychological scars of that mishap

Can atypical depression cause you to eat more?

Can't help yourself at the dinner table? Do you just have to eat that bowl of pasta, or that big piece of cake? And when you do, even though you feel a little guilty, do you feel better?

A new study published in the Journal of Psychiatric Practice found that people who were diagnosed with atypical depression, the most common subtype of depression, and who also experienced carbohydrate cravings, achieved relief from their cravings when they took a as well as the breakup of his marriage, Ben accepts an assignment to become the lead instructor in the rescue swimmer training program.

There he encounters a young recruit named Jake Fischer (Ashton Kutcher), a high school swimming champ complete with a smirk on his face. We all know where this story is going.

The intense rivalry between the trainer and trainee goes through the checklist items of a typical training camp film. The rescue swimmer candidates are subjected to arduous drills dealing with oxygen deprivation, hypothermia, and how to approach a drowning victim in the high seas. That one didn't look like much fun.

No basic training film simple mineral - chromium picolinate.

People who crave carbs - cravings as intense as most would associate with pregnancy - might also have mood disorders or underlying body chemistry problems related to insulin regulation.

"The exciting news is that this natural element, chromium picolinate, may significantly reduce these symptoms and is available in once-daily capsules," said the study's lead investigator John Docherty, M.D.

"A supplement that effectively reduces carbohydrate craving, is well-tolerated and has a low occurrence of side effects would be a very useful contribution to improve overall health outcomes."

Despite its name, atypical depression is very common and occurs in as many as 25 to 42 percent of the 19 million Americans who are diagnosed with depression.

would be complete without the obligatory off-base romance. To win a bet, Fischer begins to court a local schoolteacher (Melissa Sagemiller). That subplot along with the chatter at a local watering hole churns up some valuable screen time.

It is too easy to dismiss "The Guardian" as nothing more than a predictable, watery retread of "An Officer and a Gentleman." This reviewer found himself engrossed in the tense action rescue scenes that highlight the film from beginning to end.

But it is Costner who carries the film with his gritty performance as the conflicted trainer, bringing to mind a similar performance by Clint Eastwood in "Heartbreak Ridge".

People with atypical depression often experience cravings for sweets and carbs, weight gain, lethargy, heavy feelings in the arms and legs, excessive sleepiness and feelings that are hurt easily.

"Carbohydrate cravings may signal the presence of a more serious underlying medical condition and physicians and mental health professionals need to be more alert to patients who report this as a symptom," Dr. Docherty explained.

The chromium picolinate supplement, Chromax, used in the study, is developed by Nutrition 21, a bioscience company that researches, develops and markets chromium-based nutrition products.

The U.S. Food and Drug Administration has recently allowed a qualified health claim for chromium picolinate that confirms that it is safe for use as a dietary supplement.

Refractive surgery Sheth helps patients with eye problems

NILESH M. SHETH M.D.

Niles M. Sheth, MD joined the Horsley Eye Center this spring and has become very popular with patients seeking refractive surgery procedures, particularly Conductive Keratoplasty, CK, a new procedure for reading vision loss.

Dr. Sheth is accepting new patient appointments at Horsley Eye Center at 781-979-0960. He is practicing Ophthalmology with Will Horsley, MD in his office here on the campus of the former New England Memorial Hospital.

Dr. Sheth is a fellowship-trained cornea specialist. Dr. Sheth also has extensive experience in LASIK and other refractive surgeries. He also is trained and experienced in glaucoma care, including new laser treatments for glaucoma.

Dr. Sheth looks forward to joining Dr. Horsley and continuing the family-oriented personal care that the Horsley Eye Center always has been noted for since it was founded by Drs. Margaret and Ernie Horsley nearly 50 years ago.

Dr. Horsley said, "we and the community are fortunate to be gaining the skills and experience of a physician with the qualifications of Dr. Sheth."

Dr. Will Horsley is one of the most experienced LASIK and refractive surgeons in New England. He is Cornea Fellowship trained and LASIK board certified by the American Board of Eye Surgeons, in addition to being Board Certified by the American Board of Ophthalmology. Other refractive surgeries performed at the Horsley Eye Center are Conductive Keratoplasty, (to restore midlife loss of reading vision), clear lens exchange, (for severe hyperopia), and the intraocular contact lens of ICL for extreme nearsightedness.

Dr. Horsley also is the former Chief of Ophthalmology at the Boston Regional Medical Center, and has been on the laser staff of the Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary.

Horsley Eye Center is located at 3 Woodland Road, Suite 120 in Stoneham. 781-979-0960
